While We Shivered...

If you thought Victoria was cold yesterday, you're dead right. It was the second coldest place in Canada. (See Page 2.)

Only St. John's, Newfoundland, had a lower daytime temperature—45 degrees compared to Victoria's 48.

Even Whitehorse, in the Yukon, was warmer with a 51-degree temperature.

And to add insult to injury, on the same day last year, the thermometer hit 53 degrees in Victoria, 34 degrees warmer.

...Prairies Sweltered

WINNIPEG (CP)—Residents of the tiny southern Manitoba community of Gretna sweltered in a 90-degree temperature as nearby points in the province Thursday broke existing high record temperatures.

The weather office in Winnipeg reported Thursday night the temperature in the community, situated on the Canadian-

United States border about 80 miles south of here, broke the previous May 21 record of 88 set in 1950, 1955 and 1961.

In Winnipeg a 34-year-record fall of 96.6 was reached, breaking the previous high of 91 set in 1930.

The 96.6 reading was the highest in Winnipeg since Aug. 16, 1961, when 97.3 was recorded, the weather office said.

Classic Case

Parolee Lies Near Death

QUINCY, Mass. (AP)—A long-term criminal, paroled six weeks ago after being termed a classic example of rehabilitation, lay near death Thursday night, hit by a car as he crossed a street with the Canadian-born woman who had waited to marry him.

Joseph A. Flaherty, 41, was paroled from Walpole state prison April 3 after serving 13 years of a 36- to 45-year sentence for rape, robbery and assault.

LED REVOLT

A few years ago he was considered one of the toughest convicts in the Massachusetts prison system. He helped lead an 85-hour rebellion at the old Charlestown state prison in 1955.

When he was paroled, Warden John A. Gavin said "in all my 23 years in the correction field I have never met a man who so thoroughly followed out his promises to straighten out."

WED CANADIAN

Flaherty married Frances McKearney, 33, a native of Peace River, Alta., soon after being paroled. They had become acquainted by mail after she sent him a Christmas card in 1958 from Peace River.

Flaherty credited much of his rehabilitation to her faith in him.

The accident occurred Thursday as Flaherty, on his way to work as a compositor at the Quincy Patriot Ledger, was crossing a street with his wife.

The hospital said he suffered head injuries, two broken legs and internal injuries.

Chamberlin

City Man Rhodes Scholar

Winner of this year's Rhodes scholarship at UBC in Math honors graduate John Edward Chamberlin, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Chamberlin, of 512 Transit. The student was educated in Victoria, including a year at Victoria College, before going to UBC. He plans to study English at Oxford. A list of other Victoria and Island graduates appears on Page 23.

Watch on Reds

From AP, UPI

Coupled with a stern warning in the UN Thursday that the United States will defend the countries of Southeast Asia from Communist aggression so long as they request help came a Washington announcement that U.S. jet planes are keeping a high-flying watch on Pathet Lao forces in Laos.

Deeply concerned by the trouble boiling up in Southeast Asia, the U.S. state department Thursday joined its major allies in calling for a meeting of the 14 signatories to the Geneva Agreement under which Laos is neutralized.

And, in Paris, French foreign minister Couve de Murville called on the major powers yesterday to guarantee neutralization not only for Laos but for all of former French Indochina.

Reporting to a cabinet meeting on a French note to Britain and Russia, co-chairman of the Geneva Agreement, Couve de Murville said:

NO OTHER SOLUTION

"There is no other solution to the Laos problem than neutralization by the big powers. It is the sole guarantee of peace."

Although the Western Big Three seemed in loose agreement on the necessity for a conference on the Communist-caused Laos crisis, the Soviet Union has announced support for continued coalition rule of the Asian kingdom.

SOVIET WARNING

Moscow coupled this with a warning against the exclusion of any Laotian political element, a reference to the pro-Red Pathet Lao faction that has been boycotting the coalition.

Speaking in the UN Security Council U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson said that his government takes "a grave view" of events in Laos. "Those responsible have set foot upon a dangerous path," he warned.

EXERCISE IN STUPIDITY

Soviet delegate Nikolai Fedorenko told the council that Stevenson's speech was an exercise in stupidity suitable only for those "who tell stories to little children and village idiots."

Sugar Price Drops Again

MONTREAL (CP)—Three major Montreal sugar refiners have announced a sharp reduction in the wholesale price of sugar—90 cents to $11.60 a 100-pound bag. It was the third cut in as many days.

The last price change by the three refineries—Canada and Dominion, St. Lawrence and Atlantic—was a 25-cent reduction to $12.50 a 100-pound bag.

Panama Envoy Shoots Editor

Panama ambassador to UN Aquilino Boyd shot and wounded newspaper editor Ecolastico Calvo after they exchanged hot words from cars in Panama City traffic jam over editorial criticism of Boyd. Disarmed by bystander, Boyd then beat Calvo with black-jack. He'll probably be charged with attempted murder.

Not Ruble To UN -Kremlin

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The Soviet Union announced again Thursday night that it won't pay a ruble of its $52,600,000 arrears on United Nations Congo and Middle East peace-keeping accounts.

The Soviet UN delegation issued a statement saying the expenses for the two operations are illegal "and the Soviet Union has no intention to share them."

The other nine countries in the Soviet bloc owe total arrears on the peace-keeping operations of $16,700,000. Cuba, which follows the Soviet lead, owes $444,000.

France has paid for the Middle East costs but has refused up to now to pay $16,100,000 on Congo costs.

River Treaty Certain

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons committee study of the Columbia River treaty was virtually completed Thursday and there was strong evidence after 50 meetings since April 7 that it will pass as expected without one vote having been awayed.

External Affairs Minister Martin reiterated his support for the 1961 treaty with the United States and the protocol signed in January.

SECRET SESSION

Now, the external affairs committee stands adjourned until its steering group puts together a report for discussion at a secret session of the 35-member committee.

Only the New Democrats buck the treaty. One possible dissent, Lawrence E. Kindt (PC-Mackay) said Thursday he was not too happy about some features of the deal with British Columbia and the U.S.

Let the People Decide!

Dear Prime Minister: I Want Flag Plebiscite

Though the Daily Colonist takes the editorial stand that the Canadian Red Ensign should be retained as Canada's flag, it recognizes the right of every Canadian of voting age to express his personal and free views on the matter.

The Colonist firmly believes that the choice of a national symbol is something that cannot and must not be left in the hands of politicians to decide under partisan duress.

The only way to remove this issue from the realm of politics is for a national plebiscite to be held, in which every Canadian citizen can make his or her own desires known to the government.

Colonist readers who support this view are urged to complete the coupon form below.

Dear Prime Minister:

I am in favor of a national plebiscite to decide upon the selection of a Canadian national flag.

'Pearson Flag' Picked, But ...

Still Tightly Furled

OTTAWA (CP)—The cabinet approved a maple leaf flag for Canada Thursday but the House of Commons was left no wiser about its detailed design.

Prime Minister Pearson told reporters after a three-hour morning cabinet meeting the cabinet had unanimously agreed on a design, which will be embodied in a resolution to be submitted to the Commons next week.

Mr. Pearson also said that if he were asked in the Commons Thursday to describe the design, he would do so in general terms.

But no one asked him point-blank during the House question period for the details.

Instead, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker quizzed the prime minister about the circumstances surrounding a dinner party Mr. Pearson gave last week for some journalists, at which the Liberal leader's personal preference for the flag was displayed and discussed.

HIS FLAG

Mr. Diefenbaker called it Mr. Pearson's personal flag, and Mr. Pearson said that was not so. The cabinet had decided on a design, he added, which would be submitted to the Commons soon.

Mr. Pearson said his preview for some reporters was just a social occasion, and he hoped the reporters had as good a time at his house as they did whenever they visited Mr. Diefenbaker.

TEA-AND FLAGS

"We had a cup of tea," Mr. Pearson said, "and some discussion about flags and emblems did come up."

'They Found I Was A Writer'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Ben Metcalfe, newspaper man turned publicist, said Thursday he was badly beaten when guests at an "LSD party" discovered he was a writer.

He was commenting on testimony given by accordionist Leo Aquino at the San Francisco trial of Bernard Roseman and Bernard Copeley, charged with smuggling and sale of LSD, a hallucination-producing drug.

Filibuster Threatened

'We Want a Holiday'

OTTAWA (CP)—The government received a veiled ultimatum from a New Democratic Party MP Thursday—either plan now for summer holidays for MPs or face a hot-weather filibuster on government legislation.

Arnold Peters, 42-year-old trade unionist who helped change Parliament's divorce machinery by an all-out blockade of divorce bills, said Prime Minister Pearson should set the dates for a six-week or eight-week summer break in Parliament's business, then list the essential legislation that should be passed right away.

With an agenda and a definite holiday break before them, MPs would get cracking on important legislation, he said. The debate arose during consideration of an interim supply bill, giving the government spending money for the month of June. The bill went through all stages and was passed by the Commons.

Mr. Peters warned that if the government sticks to its present list of some 34 priority items before a summer recess, the next two months would be spent but he was prepared to support it.

The committee will present its report to Parliament which then will ratify the treaty and protocol. The government will stand or fall on the documents as now arranged—no changes will be permitted—and has set Oct. 1 as the deadline for getting them through Parliament.

By Oct. 1, the U.S. will pay B.C. $274,000,000 in advance for a 30-year sale of power and add another $80,000,000 for flood-control protection. All this will cover the cost of three B.C. storage dams and leave something besides to start installing power-generating equipment at one of them.

Mr. Martin aimed most of his statements at treaty criticism from Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton who was in the committee room at the end, as he was most of the time.

Mr. Martin said the general has played a large part in Canadian affairs but he could not agree with him on this issue.

The general's own preference in development would produce nine per cent more power but that power would cost 16 per cent more. He must reject other points raised by the general, he said, although he had been helpful in making sure that the treaty and protocol were adequately scanned.

Mr. Martin called for a unanimous vote on the committee findings.

TO CALL TENDERS

The committee heard Thursday that tenders could be called now on two of the three storage dams in B.C. and that tenders for building the third and largest at Mica Creek could be called shortly.

Mica, last project to be completed, would be operating in 1973.

The committee itself heard strong expert views on both sides of the treaty fence and much of the criticism followed the line of Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, the prosecution's star witness.

He was the man credited with obtaining the principle of a 50-50 split for Canada on the benefits created in the U.S. by Canadian river control.

But he broke publicly with the treaty makers in April, 1962, when he was retired as head of the International Joint Commission where he had been intimately connected with events leading up to—and including—the treaty negotiations.

The federal and B.C. governments said the treaty scheme of development produced less power but was more attractive economically. Further, the treaty represented the desires of B.C. itself as owner of the river, they said.

Gen. McNaughton's criticism centred on the proposed $30,000,000 dam at Libby, Mont., backing Kootenay River water 40 miles into Canada and giving the U.S. control of the river before it re-enters B.C.

Gen. McNaughton also criticized the proposed High Arrow dam costing $129,500,000 north of Trail on the Columbia as desecration of the Arrow Lakes—a widening of the Columbia River for transient and short-term benefits.

He also contended that the treaty and the protocol together give the U.S. a huge block of cheap power while B.C. industry will have higher-cost power from the Peace River in the north.

Diversion rights to turn the Kootenay River into the nearby Columbia headwaters in the East Kootenay valley can never be exercised in fact although they may exist in law, he said.

Nassau Man on Rampage Kills Wife, Six Others

NASSAU (AP)—A man with a shotgun rampaged through Nassau's southern suburbs Wednesday night killing seven — including himself — and wounding six in a two-hour automobile foray.

Dozens of police, who had cordoned off a two-square-mile area and searched it in vain for the slayer, found Ruben Rolle, 30, dead of shotgun wounds in his home with the big-bore weapon lying nearby. Police commissioner Nigel Morris said authorities did not establish a motive immediately but "the first person he shot was his wife."

Police said Rolle went berserk, took a friend's automobile and sped through south Nassau, leaving a wake of bodies and terrified onlookers beseeching police help. All those slain except Mrs. Rolle were men.

on trying to convince it that summer holidays should be granted.

The NDP member for Timiskaming said the prime minister was "unfair" and "rather stupid" if he thought Parliament would clean up all the government's legislation before taking a breather.

He said some MPs were already taking their summer holidays and would be around in the hot months to make sure the prime minister was kept in the House through June and July.

GUN AT HEADS

It was "unfair and unrealistic" to point a gun at the heads of MPs to get all legislation passed so that Parliament could be recessed, Members of Parliament should be allowed time to visit their constituents in the summer months—not in the dead of winter.

Mr. Peters suggested a recess from June 1 to the end of July.

Robert Prittle (NDP—Burnaby-Richmond) said there was fault on both sides of the House for the fact that business was not moving well.

There were some Conservatives who were anxious to see their leader get another chance to become prime minister, and there likely were Liberals who wanted their leader to try for a majority position in the Commons.

Gen. McNaughton also criticized the proposed High Arrow dam costing $129,500,000 north of Trail on the Columbia as desecration of the Arrow Lakes—a widening of the Columbia River for transient and short-term benefits.

He also contended that the treaty and the protocol together give the U.S. a huge block of cheap power while B.C. industry will have higher-cost power from the Peace River in the north.

Diversion rights to turn the Kootenay River into the nearby Columbia headwaters in the East Kootenay valley can never be exercised in fact although they may exist in law, he said.

Flag Still Furlled

He denied a newspaper reported that he had called the Queen to say the Red Ensign would no longer be flown in Canada.

At the Thursday morning cabinet meeting, there were three flag designs under study. All had three red maple leaves on a single stem as the principal feature. The difference was in the backgrounds—one all white, another all pale blue, and the third white with blue vertical bars at each side to symbolize Canada's sea-to-sea national motto.

A spokesman for Mr. Pearson said that the design having been decided on by the cabinet, nothing more could be said about it until it was put before Parliament.

However, it was reasonable to assume that the maple leaf motif was approved since it was common to the three designs, he added.

The cabinet meeting was marked by a vigil maintained outside the room by Miss Edythe Dowd of Montreal, who said she came to Ottawa for the specific purpose of waving the Red Ensign at Mr. Pearson.

He spoke to her briefly and said his new flag is for a national purpose. She insisted the Union Jack was the best flag for every purpose, and clutched her Red Ensign with her purse. She said she would put it with the Union Jacks in her hallway at home, and that she chose the Red Ensign instead of the Union Jack for her one-woman demonstration "because my brother fought under it."

In the Commons, Mr. Pearson again rejected requests that the flag issue be submitted to the provinces and to a national referendum.

"This is the responsibility for the Canadian Parliament," he said.

Final Words Won by Crown

CALGARY—For a good five minutes, not even Magistrate Fred Thurgood could get in a word.

It was supposed to be a straight case of assault. One well-dressed woman sat in the prisoner's box, a second took the witness stand. Someone, it developed, had been driving improperly, and someone got slapped. The exchange grew high-pitched and ceaseless.

Finally Magistrate Thurgood made himself heard. "I'll have no kangaroo court here," he said. "This case is discharged."

But Crown Attorney Edward Adolphe had the last word, as the two women neared the single courtroom door.

"No fighting in the corridors, please," he advised.

OKLAHOMA CITY—A 55-year-old minister from New York's Bronx, Rev. Edgar G. Hawkins, has been named first Negro moderator in the history of the United Presbyterian Church in the United States.

DETROIT—Silk wallpaper for his office bathroom was just one item that brought Maldeen, Alden E. Sibley, U.S. Army, to the attention of Washington officials. In addition, a lavatory vanity, walnut panelling, vinyl tile and carpeting worth $2,264 to cover the tile raised questions about a building the general calls "auster."

LOS ANGELES—Canadian trade minister Michel Sharp told a World Trade League meeting here that Russia will never again be able to export wheat, and may not even be able to sustain herself without imports. Mr. Sharp negotiated Canada's $600,000,000 grain deal with Russia and Communist China.

CHICAGO—Suspended Secret Service agent Abraham Holden, accompanied by his wife, was arraigned in court here on a charge of conspiring to obstruct justice by attempting to sell a prosecution document to a defendant in a counterfeiting case.

BARCELONA, Spain—Police don't know how Jose Manuel Carracedo Yanes got his nickname, the Green Satellite, but they've restricted him to a cell while they check charges he proposed to five girls in exchange for their savings, and drove a big rented car charged to the public works department.

Ensign Official —For Now

By KEN CLARK

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Red Ensign Thursday became official flag of the Royal Canadian Legion, but the president said he hopes members would honor any new national emblem.

Delegates at the Legion's national convention approved a resolution selecting the Red Ensign. It would be the only flag to fly above Legion branches and the national headquarters in Ottawa.

Fred O'Brien of Durham, Ont., the new Legion president, said after the convention decision it does not necessarily mean the Red Ensign will be the official flag for all time to come.

In Vancouver T. C. Douglas, national leader of the New Democratic Party, came out in favor of Prime Minister Pearson's proposed maple leaf flag.

But he told reporters he would have preferred to see the flag chosen by an all-party parliamentary committee instead of just the cabinet.

Also in Vancouver a visiting Australian cabinet minister said choosing a national flag was never a problem Down Under.

C. F. Adderman, minister of primary industry, said the Menzies government brought in an official flag in the early 1950s, which contains the Union Jack and the Southern Cross, and has gained widespread acceptance.

THUMAIR—British jet fighters roared into action Thursday in a major operation to soften up the Radfan rebels of southern Arabia.

RAF Hunter jets pummeled rebel mountain positions with rockets and cannon in an air strike that may last several days.

Planes dropped leaflets before the attack warning tribesmen to leave the area. The leaflets said the strike was necessary because the tribes were harboring "bad men."

TANKS IN ACTION

The British threw a column of 50-ton Centurion tanks, accompanied by armored cars, into Wadi Mirrah, a rebel lair only two miles from the sweltering, dusty campaign base.

The tanks, in action for the first time since Korea, pumped 105-millimetre shells into sniper nests in the mountains at the mouth of the Wadi.

"Our intention is to tighten the squeeze in order to reduce the rebels to a state in which they can no longer wage war against us," said Brig. Hugh Blacker, commander of the attack force.

Two companies of paratroops began probing the rebel-held mountains two nights ago. They ran into sporadic sniper fire but advanced without great difficulty.

Appeal Set For Indian

OTTAWA (CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada agreed Thursday to hear an appeal case on the right of Indians to shoot game birds out of season after doubting its right to do so.

The case involves an appeal by treaty Indian Michael Silvea, a member of the Yellowknife band near the mining town of Yellowknife, N.W.T., against his conviction for shooting a mallard duck out of season in May, 1962. He was fined $10 and costs.

Finn's Death Sparks Row

NICOSIA (AP)—A Turkish-Cypriot explanation of the killing of a Finnish soldier, the first fatality in the United Nations peace force on Cyprus, touched off a sharp dispute Thursday.

A Finnish spokesman challenged Turkish-Cypriot claims that a Finnish patrol failed to make known its identity. The Finnish spokesman charged that the Turkish-Cypriots replied with bullets when the patrol identified itself.

The controversy raged around the death Wednesday night of Finnish radio operator Juhana Matikainen, 22, in a two-hour gun battle near the Turkish village of Kani, six miles north-west of Nicosia.

THE DIFFERENCE IN SWEET VERMOUTHS

Most brands of sweet vermouth are slightly heavier than Martini & Rossi. They smell stronger... taste stronger, and look a little darker in the glass. Some people prefer them.

Martini & Rossi is a lighter vermouth. It is famous for its light, yet lively taste. Because of this, it is more subtle in cocktails... more refreshing on the rocks. Many people prefer it.

The Flag

IF PRIME MINISTER PEARSON has his way the days of the Canadian Red Ensign as Canada's national emblem are numbered.

It deserves a better fate. Because it is the flag under which the majority of Canadian citizens today were either born or chose to live and prosper, it should not be idly discarded now.

Because it is a noble part of Canada's past—first having flown over Canadians in 1892, it should not be forgotten now.

Because it has been flown proudly by Canadian fighting men of the Boer war, the 1914-18 war, the 1939-45 war and the Korean campaign, it should be given a fighting chance now.

Because it has already been made the flag of Canada by the blood and valor of Canadian men and women, it should not be dishonored now.

Because it is a distinctive Canadian flag (no other nation flies it) and is today accepted around the world as our national symbol, it should not be subjected to the indignity now being prepared for it. The Daily Colonist strongly supports the view of the Royal Canadian Legion that the Canadian Red Ensign should be retained and officially proclaimed as Canada's national banner.

But it also recognizes, as does the Legion, that it is the right of every Canadian to express his individual and free opinion on the choice of a national flag—and that this can only be done through a nationwide plebiscite.

However the views of Canadians across the country may differ on the selection of a national symbol for their country it is certainly not a matter which should be left to a handful of partisan oriented politicians to decide as Mr. Pearson has now decreed.

The flag should be and must be always above politics.

A Matter of Age

IN RECENT YEARS the use of the word "old" when applied to an elderly person has come to be looked upon in many quarters as some sort of an unforgivable insult.

In Canada coy euphemisms are being used more and more to describe people over seventy. "Mature people" and "senior citizens" are among the most popular. Today when a man grows into his seventies, or even eighties, he is no longer referred to as being in his old age, he is simply acknowledged as being in his golden years.

This rejection of the word "old" has now even been carried to Ottawa where there is a move afoot to remove it from the "old" age pension. The government is being urged to use in its stead some other equally—but not so condemning—descriptive phrase.

How seriously the federal government is entertaining this suggestion is not known. However, it is not without the realms of possibility that it may borrow an idea from the State of California where old folk are now generally known as "keen-agers."

So Be It

PRESIDENT JOHNSON has been severely criticized all over the world—mainly by animal lovers—for picking up one of his pet dogs by the ears. But as yet his action has not reached the proportion of an international incident.

However, his home-grown political opponents may well have come up with something that could give the president's foreign adversaries something to work on toward that end.

During the past week or so Republican Party supporters have been gleefully using the following biblical quotation (Proverbs 26:17) against him: "He that passeth by, and meddleth with strife belonging not to him, is like one that taketh a dog by the ears."

Too Hasty Action

May 1, as this year's president of the retired Naval Officers' Association of Victoria, B.C., congratulate you on your excellent editorial entitled "Too Hasty!"

Your article has been of great assistance in warning the public of the danger of too hasty action by the defence minister in implementing his economic measures, especially in regard to his proposed amalgamation of the armed services.

I think it can be assumed that few Canadians are aware that an armed services integration plan was carefully studied and finally rejected by both the United Kingdom and a United States government.

This country should study very carefully the reasons why integration of the armed services was rejected by the governments of these two senior NATO countries before committing our own forces to a similar plan.

In the interest of public safety perhaps they should send at least two "Mounties" to convoy naughty school-age youngsters.

THE "JACKDAW"

The concern of the parks superintendent in the municipality of Saanich over beach access would be commendable if it were not so out of keeping with past practices. The municipality, through its elected representatives and its servants, has condoned the practice by subdividing the law where "access to the water" was concerned, but denying public use of beaches by ending access at the top of rocky bluffs.

A typical example exists at the foot of Hollydene Place. Here the access ends at the top of a precipitous rock bluff while a short distance to the north there is a delightful sandy beach. A short and much more reasonable access should have been insisted upon by the municipality when the subdivision was made so that the public could make use of the beach. Doubtless some of the other accesses not being made use of are similarly located.

Luxury Items

The Esquimalt council admits publicly that there is an existing debt of $945,884 owing by the taxpayers and now they wish to saddle them with a by-law to spend $383,000 more on a swimming pool which they also admit will operate at a loss.

Thinking Aloud

... of whom, and ships, and sailing war ...

By TOM TAYLOR

I WOUND the car around the curving Oak Bay promenade and there, closing to my eyes, was the marina of new-found splendor and admirable facility.

A bold and imaginative resurrection; linking forthrightly to the future.

And then the tall, pencil-thin flagpole caught my gaze, from its top a flag spread taut to the wind, as though to defy the elements of nature and of man, especially Ottawa man.

An emblem waving equally bold and imaginative. The Red Ensign.

How apt, how belonging it seemed, as it flew high on the edge of the sea, a banner whose origin and history is tied to the oceans of the world, and has been for many a yesteryear.

What a pity, nay perhaps a tragedy, if this oblong of red bunting is to be rolled up, put away, in a trunk, for ever.

It need not be, of course, even if formal proclamation by pressed men announce that henceforth another flag will usurp its national place. There will be no law, presumably, to prevent a blind eye being turned east of the Rockies.

Not to see what goes against the grain. Or to prohibit the Red Ensign from still flying over marinas, homes, castles, broad farm acres—anywhere the whim pleases.

And, I anticipate, please it will amply; comes the maple one, two or three.

But what of the ships, the armed services, the regiments, when comes the order for the lowering of the Red Ensign and the hoisting of a substitute?

Will the White Ensign still adorn the gaff? Will the blue banner bearing the airman's roundel be recast?

And will the regiments dip their colors, so low that nothing remains of the kinship with their kind, the units to which by tradition and example they are as brothers?

And which is betokened by the colors they bear aloft?

For a "national" flag has ramifications. Its image takes varied form and circumstance when visibly reflected in the life of a country; its operations, its peoples, its societies. It drapes a patina over those to whom it belongs.

And who embrace it in the symbols, the rituals, the insignia, the order of their manifold dealings.

It does not fly from a flag-staff alone.

I climbed back to the Oak Bay Marina. The wind still blew strong and steady, but the Red Ensign, stretched to the fullness of its pattern, matched the elements in its steadiness.

As in many fields it has done, and those beneath its mantle.

A rich emblem, I thought, as I absorbed its bold and spirited display. Nor has it never surrendered. Should it be betrayed?

Generations of people create a traditional flag, men tilling the soil, building factories, sailing a new population.

A flag of our country is not a political tool by which certain parties can manipulate an advantage because of the momentary happenings of the day. If our current political leaders hope to appease one faction of the population by eliminating from our national symbol the tradition of another mass they will end in alienating these people and completely satisfying no one.

My grandfather left his native land for Canada's Red Ensign. My father was born under the Red Ensign as were my young sister and myself. My children will also be raised to honor the Canadian Red Ensign. And travelling abroad I will say "I come from a land of vast prairies and tall mountains, of rushing rivers and deep lakes. I come from the great northern nation dwelling in peace and freedom under the Red Ensign. Yes, I come from Canada."

—FRANK COX.

Searching for a sign for levity what can define it better than a leaf? Light as a bubble. Is this the image Canadians want to give to the world? Unwittingly, is it?—this is what Mr. Lester Pearson is proposing.

What possible feeling can a leaf promote? It may be a suitable sign for a botanical society. If something from the vegetable kingdom is desirable why not a pine cone? Pine forests are a typical of Canada as maple trees, and lumber one of its main industries.

Moreover, a pine cone, in its way, is a kind of fulfillment, a beautiful object and in its compactness represents a unity of separate pods. Unity is being sought, is it not? Given as a subject for an artistic design, something "specifically Canadian" might evolve, and give a meaning for and away beyond the triviality of a wind blown leaf.

—ANON

Let us each take a firm stand for the Red Ensign and let Ottawa know that we do.

If the people of 10 provinces and the Yukon and the North

In spite of my own attachment to the Red Ensign, I can understand the attitude of other Canadians—particularly those of French ancestry. We are like two trains running in opposite directions on the same track. The problem is to consolidate and re-route them. To do this it will be necessary to discard some of our pre-conceived notions regarding the ultimate purpose of a national flag.

The national flag of Canada should symbolize something which appeals to all of us regardless of racial origin or religious faith. On a recent visit to the Veterans' Hospital, I noticed the Red Cross flag and felt a pang of disappointment that it was already pre-empted.

As our national flag, its symbolism would be almost perfect. The white ground would be mandatory, since white comprises every conceivable shade of color. Retention of the cross is also important because of its almost universal recognition as the symbol of fortitude; its color, of course, would have to be changed. My personal preference would be for a gold cross on a white ground.

Anything beyond that would tend to confuse the symbolism and clutter up the design.

WALTER G. YORK.

Due to the ever increasing cost of living, the federal government over the past two years has justly increased the monies paid out to the Lieut.-Governors, judges, civil service, armed forces, and even the members themselves of both the Senate and House of Commons.

The one group that has been completely overlooked for the past three years, are the country's war widows, and war disability pensioners. One can only wonder if our present government is taking its spite out on these worthy Canadians on account of the stand taken by all the veterans' organizations across Canada, in respect to their strong opposition to the government's present intention to throw out our Canadian flag, and substitute one that is more pleasing to our French-Canadian cousins.

It seems almost strange that not one of our local members of either the Senate or House of Commons from Vancouver or Victoria have seen fit to stand up and speak out loud and clear on this important issue that affects so many loyal Canadians.

—MAPLE LEAF FOREVER.

With all the letters that have been written regarding the adoption of a distinctive flag for Canada, there is one side of the issue that seems to have been ignored by those who want a change and that is that no flag other than the Canadian Red Ensign can signify our unity with the Commonwealth which has, during the last half century, been the first to stand up against the forces of aggression. Again, are the wishes of those of us who did return from these wars to be totally ignored? We also know what the sentiments of our comrades who have passed on would be on this subject and to those who have signed would be a direct insult to their memory. In any event the Ensign signifies unity whereas three maple leaves does not, and why three, why not one, why not one for each province?

We have a minority government in Ottawa and since this is a national issue there should be a plebiscite taken on the question.

A. GORSE.

CANADA! YPRES, 1915

Victoria Voices On

The National Flag

THIS afternoon father joined our neighbor in raising the Canadian Red Ensign from the front porch. Tomorrow I believe I'll raise Canada's flag from the roof. However I do not share my father's reasons for this action.

I am only 18 years old. I have not gone to war under our flag, none of my immediate family has been buried in defence of the freedom of this land over which the Ensign flies. But still I will pledge no allegiance to a "distinctive" tri-maple leaf or a beaver gnawing a fleur-de-lis, any other than the representative Canadian Red Ensign would be an international impostor.

For what is a flag? Physically nothing more than a piece of cloth. So then do our people stand and cheer a strip of silk, do our troops salute a bolt of material? No? Perhaps then a flag is not simply a measure of fabric? A flag is symbolic of a cause. It may be the banner of the Boy Scouts or a fraternity or a nation. Materialistically it is not valuable, yet it is jealously guarded and protected because it represents the heritage and aims of the founding organization.

Generations of people create a traditional flag, men tilling the soil, building factories, sailing a new population.

A flag of our country is not a political tool by which certain parties can manipulate an advantage because of the momentary happenings of the day. If our current political leaders hope to appease one faction of the population by eliminating from our national symbol the tradition of another mass they will end in alienating these people and completely satisfying no one.

My grandfather left his native land for Canada's Red Ensign. My father was born under the Red Ensign as were my young sister and myself. My children will also be raised to honor the Canadian Red Ensign. And travelling abroad I will say "I come from a land of vast prairies and tall mountains, of rushing rivers and deep lakes. I come from the great northern nation dwelling in peace and freedom under the Red Ensign. Yes, I come from Canada."

—FRANK COX.

Searching for a sign for levity what can define it better than a leaf? Light as a bubble. Is this the image Canadians want to give to the world? Unwittingly, is it?—this is what Mr. Lester Pearson is proposing.

What possible feeling can a leaf promote? It may be a suitable sign for a botanical society. If something from the vegetable kingdom is desirable why not a pine cone? Pine forests are a typical of Canada as maple trees, and lumber one of its main industries.

Moreover, a pine cone, in its way, is a kind of fulfillment, a beautiful object and in its compactness represents a unity of separate pods. Unity is being sought, is it not? Given as a subject for an artistic design, something "specifically Canadian" might evolve, and give a meaning for and away beyond the triviality of a wind blown leaf.

—ANON

Let us each take a firm stand for the Red Ensign and let Ottawa know that we do.

If the people of 10 provinces and the Yukon and the North

In spite of my own attachment to the Red Ensign, I can understand the attitude of other Canadians—particularly those of French ancestry. We are like two trains running in opposite directions on the same track. The problem is to consolidate and re-route them. To do this it will be necessary to discard some of our pre-conceived notions regarding the ultimate purpose of a national flag.

The national flag of Canada should symbolize something which appeals to all of us regardless of racial origin or religious faith. On a recent visit to the Veterans' Hospital, I noticed the Red Cross flag and felt a pang of disappointment that it was already pre-empted.

As our national flag, its symbolism would be almost perfect. The white ground would be mandatory, since white comprises every conceivable shade of color. Retention of the cross is also important because of its almost universal recognition as the symbol of fortitude; its color, of course, would have to be changed. My personal preference would be for a gold cross on a white ground.

Anything beyond that would tend to confuse the symbolism and clutter up the design.

WALTER G. YORK.

Due to the ever increasing cost of living, the federal government over the past two years has justly increased the monies paid out to the Lieut.-Governors, judges, civil service, armed forces, and even the members themselves of both the Senate and House of Commons.

The one group that has been completely overlooked for the past three years, are the country's war widows, and war disability pensioners. One can only wonder if our present government is taking its spite out on these worthy Canadians on account of the stand taken by all the veterans' organizations across Canada, in respect to their strong opposition to the government's present intention to throw out our Canadian flag, and substitute one that is more pleasing to our French-Canadian cousins.

It seems almost strange that not one of our local members of either the Senate or House of Commons from Vancouver or Victoria have seen fit to stand up and speak out loud and clear on this important issue that affects so many loyal Canadians.

—MAPLE LEAF FOREVER.

With all the letters that have been written regarding the adoption of a distinctive flag for Canada, there is one side of the issue that seems to have been ignored by those who want a change and that is that no flag other than the Canadian Red Ensign can signify our unity with the Commonwealth which has, during the last half century, been the first to stand up against the forces of aggression. Again, are the wishes of those of us who did return from these wars to be totally ignored? We also know what the sentiments of our comrades who have passed on would be on this subject and to those who have signed would be a direct insult to their memory. In any event the Ensign signifies unity whereas three maple leaves does not, and why three, why not one, why not one for each province?

We have a minority government in Ottawa and since this is a national issue there should be a plebiscite taken on the question.

Danger Exists In

By REAR-ADMIRAL E. P. THEDALL, RCN (Ret.)

THE leading editorial of the Colonist regarding the possible unwisdom of the government in making premature amendments to the National Defence Act, in order to conform with the proposed complete integration of the three armed forces, will be welcomed by many.

Before making any comment it would be helpful to state the present position.

The National Defence Act 1950 in Article 15 clearly states that, "The Canadian forces are the naval, army and air forces of Her Majesty raised in Canada and consist of the Royal Canadian Navy, the Canadian Army, and the Royal Canadian Air Force." It is not yet been made clear whether this article is to be revoked or not. Presumably it will have to be modified at some later date in order to be consistent with complete integration.

Article 19 makes provision for the appointment of the Chairman of Staff Committee as the co-ordinator of training and operations of the Canadian forces; it also provides for the appointment of the chiefs of the three separate services, who, under the direction of the minister, are charged with the control and administration of their respective services.

This article is apparently to be repealed.

The powers of the chairman, chiefs of staff, are then to be extended to make him the supreme controller of the armed forces and the only adviser to the minister on all matters affecting warfare on, under or over the land and sea.

There is no mention in the act of the naval board or the army and air councils, which are almost identical in composition and responsibility. These bodies were evolved in each service after a long and arduous period of trial and error, to assist the respective chiefs in the execution of their duties to the minister.

They are to be dissolved. Latterly the chiefs of staff found that owing to the size of their forces and the complexity of operations, they required these boards and councils in order to control and administer their respective services. They also were provided with direct and specialized advice and knowledge in the separate fields of operations, personnel, logistics and budgetary matters.

With the impending dissolution of these bodies, the chiefs of the defence forces will be deprived of their advice and assistance on the highly complex and very differing skills required in sea, land and air warfare.

However brilliant, knowledgeable and powerful he may be, it is doubtful if a single chief of the defence forces would find it feasible to maintain effective and efficient administration of the armed forces in times of peace and certainly would be unable to do so in war. I hasten to add that this is no way intended to disparage the ability and integrity of the chief of staff designate, an officer whom I greatly admire.

Great and unknown dangers lie in an arrangement whereby the minister has but one adviser on all military matters. If disagreement on important principles occur, which is only too likely, one or the other must give way. This would involve either the destruction of the chief or of the minister. Neither of these alternatives is palatable. The casualty is more likely to be the spirit of the armed forces.

There is already adequate civilian control of the armed forces stemming down ward from Parliament, through the cabinet defence committee, the minister of defence, the deputy minister and last but by no means least, the Treasury Board. All of these have powers of decision and also control and have considerable influence over the decisions of the present chiefs of staff committee.

In a recent interview on a CBC television program Mr. Hellyer stated that integration would be functional in nature and would extend a long way downward, even to the extent of the forces, even to the extent of common training, common uniforms and cross manning.

Any amalgamation of functional services which would cause more economical and efficient methods for the production and supply of the munitions of war is obviously most desirable, particularly if, as the minister said, the savings were to be used to provide more ships, aircraft, and other weapons and equipment urgently required by the three services.

Should all efforts to preserve the general peace fail, then the only function of the reason why the armed forces are in being, is to fight. It is not beyond the bounds of possibility that war could occur and therefore their primary task in peace is to be prepared for war.

The efficiency of the services in war could be seriously affected and possibly destroyed altogether if integration is to be carried to the point where all officers and men are expected to become jacks-of-all-trades.

From what one reads in the press it would appear that the proposed policy intends to do just that. If it does there is a grave danger that the very worthwhile traditions and peculiar skills of each of the three services will vanish.

The potent impossibility of regimental, ship, or squadron identity has proved at sea, on battlefield after battlefield, and in the air, that this above all supports a man, and man still remains the primary weapon in battle, in the face of grave peril or disaster.

General Charles de Gaulle in the "Army of the Future" puts this very well:—

"The army in general is an entity as vast that its members can hardly visualize it as such. But the regiment can be seen, can be measured, can be understood. A man has his own place there. He can be recognized there among others. Of a soldier, the first thing one says is he is in such and such a regiment." Moreover, the emotional side of the profession finds something to feed upon in this organic grouping. The desire which is felt by the weak, mediocre, transient individual to participate in the power, the greatness, the permanence and the splendour of a famous regiment is exciting and satisfying. In addition the aesthetic character of military affairs which appeals most strongly to the senses is most clearly seen by the soldier in the regiment: impressive spectacles in which he is allowed to take part, thrilling symbols which he is privileged to see and to touch, stirring bugle calls, and music in which since a soul with which his own mingles."

Centuries ago Thucydides said: "Maritime skill is like skill of other kinds, not a thing to be cultivated by the way or at chance times."

Both these quotations apply with great force to all three of our services.

The officers and men now serving all over the world are probably the best trained and the most efficient that Canada has ever produced in peace time.

It would be a pity if the zeal to integrate them, which may very well be ill-advised, cause their quality to deteriorate to the level of mediocrity. It could happen.

What's the Choice?

From The Toronto Telegram

ONE OF THE nice things about a constitutional monarchy—the form of government we enjoy in Canada—is that the people can throw spitballs at the Crown.

This is done quite frequently; it has become one of Canada's most vigorous sports.

The owner of the bilingual newspaper in Murdochville has made the most recent attack on the Crown. Alex G. Balogh has blamed the existence of a monarchy for "disunity in this country."

History doesn't support this thesis. For many generations it was the Canadians of French origin who treasured most highly the existence of a monarchy which could protect the constitutional rights of their community against any encroachments by the Anglo-Canadians.

While this judicial safeguard is now denied them, the Crown still stands as the protector of their rights.

Furthermore, our legislative and judicial function under the Crown and, while this may not be the most efficient form of government in the world, it compares quite favorably with the various republican governments in France and Russia and Germany and the United States.

The existence of a constitutional monarchy, providing a canopy over the institution of parliamentary democracy, allows reasonable criticism; but it also demands responsibility.

Too often people criticize our constitution without suggesting a reasonable alternative. Mr. Balogh was guilty of this fault in his submission to the Royal Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism.

If anyone seriously desires a new form of government for Canada, then surely he should state the alternative in precise terms.

So far, nobody seems to have come forth with any substitute which could be studied by the people. It is not good enough to say: Let's do away with the monarchical system; not good enough to say let's scrap our parliamentary form of democracy and not suggest something to take its place.

Nevertheless, this is being done constantly by people who disparage our form of government and, at the same time, are manifestly ignorant of its origins and functions.

Constitutional monarchies do have one proven virtue—they work.

When Loyalty Conflicts with Profits Cash Wins

BACKGROUND

By DENNIS BLOODWORTH from Singapore

While 10,000 British and Malaysian troops are committed to the hit-and-miss struggle against Indonesia's armed terrorists in the jungles of North Borneo, British and overseas Chinese businessmen in Hongkong note with satisfaction that trade with the enemy is booming.

In the first three months of this year, it is estimated, Hongkong exports to Indonesia jumped to nearly $11,300,000—about four times the figure for the same quarter of 1963, when President Sukarno had yet to order military "confrontation" and an economic boycott of Malaysia.

In the conflict between loyalties and quick profits waged today in the South China seas, cash is usually the winner.

Fifteen landing craft have been built for Indonesia in Macao, the China coast colony of our Portuguese allies in NATO. Most, if not all, of them are fitted with American engines tactfully shipped from the United States via Lisbon, without touching neighboring Hongkong.

Businessmen Adopt Cynical Attitude

The precaution is sensible, for more than $2,000,000 worth of American planes and re-fitted engines bound for Indonesia have been reported held up in Hongkong under the British ban on strategic exports to Indonesia imposed last December.

However, even those British officials who feel that President Johnson is a little quick-tempered about British business in this ban. First, they are alarmed that their diminutive colony, which depends so precariously on the tolerant attitude of its vast Communist neighbor, China, should have lost its protective neutrality. It is now involved in a dispute in which Peking is on the other side.

Officials are also jealous of Hongkong's free port status, for they are uncomfortably aware that this tiny group of British rocks along the China coast, with its teeming population of under-five Chinese refugees, must trade promiscuously or die meekly.

Eager to stimulate commerce, yet anxious not to bring comfort to the enemy, the Hongkong export licensing authorities suffer a crisis of conscience whenever the frontier between the strategic and non-strategic is blurred.

This often happens. Tires, tool kits, boots and even zipper fasteners—almost anything bound for Indonesia may be for harmless civilian use or, alternatively, to equip the army of the aggressor.

It is claimed even for landing craft, that they will be used for peaceful up-river traffic along the matted, roadless coasts of Indonesia's outer islands. This may be true—until they are wanted for a beach assault.

Meanwhile, despite stern warnings from economic experts in Jakarta, who point to the dizzy drop in foreign exchange reserves, the Indonesians have in the past four weeks ordered from Hongkong an unprecedented quantity of minor luxuries, from cheap cigarette lighters to cosmetics.

In the interest of better business, local shipping lines in Hongkong are considering diverting more bottoms to the Jakarta run, some arguing ingeniously that by encouraging the Indonesians to fritter away their dwindling currency on frivolities, they are helping Malaysia to win the war of attrition.

If forced to choose, cupboard-loyalty would in any case persuade Hongkong to stand by her Commonwealth partners, for Malaysia is still a better customer than Indonesia. But with some reason, Hongkong businessmen are not inclined to take the economic boycott between the two countries too seriously.

The small, grave Chinese children in Singapore, who so expertly sorted Indonesian coffee beans before the economic boycott for about 30 cents a day, are sorting them again now. The much traveled beans have been shipped from Sumatra to Hamburg and then sent all the way back to Singapore for grading.

Rubber processing houses in Singapore are once more treating Indonesian rubber—shipped as far as the United States and then rerouted back to Singapore by its New York buyers.

Meanwhile unit boats fill across the forbidden strait at night, smuggling rubber, copra, even vegetables, to Malaysia and taking back rice and cooking oil as well as watches and cameras.

Crates arrive in Hongkong from Singapore, boldly labeled with names of Indonesian ports. A British ship in seen in South Sumatra, loading Indonesian oil for delivery to Communist China.

At every turn the boycott is beaten by "business as usual." "What would be the good of ruining Indonesia anyway?" many demand. "She would only go Communist."

Political, Economic Pressures Koreas to Link?

By RICHARD HUGHES from Tokyo

South Korea is moving closer to North Korea under pressure of political and economic crisis at home and a diplomatic initiative from France.

New South Korean prime minister, General Chung Il Kwon, a close friend of France's Couve de Murville, has been given private assurances of French aid as the massive but unsuccessful program of United States aid is cut back.

According to well-informed Japanese foreign office officials, France has also promised:

● To secure guarantees from Peking to respect Korean neutrality.

● To withhold recognition of North Korea while South Korea reconsiders terms and conditions for a national reunification which both North and South Korea insist is their devout desire.

In the background is the recent breakdown of South Korean-Japanese negotiations for "normalization" of relations. The Japanese, whose interests in Korea are elsewhere are essentially and unashamedly economic, are now inclined to favor unification of North and South Korea on a "neutralist" basis.

French Aid Assured

Big business interests (known as "the reconstructed zaibatsu") are not now anxious to invest in South Korea where violent student demonstrations are again threatening the government. Some Japanese industrialists argue openly that a neutralized, unified Korea would be a far better market.

The dismal fact which neither South Korea nor the U.S. will admit publicly is that the costly U.S. program to rebuild agrarian South Korea has failed, while industrial North Korea, under Communist methods, has achieved relative stability and prosperity.

South Korea's exports last year were less than $80,000,000 while imports totalled $550,000,000.

North Korea dramatized the contrast between conditions in the divided halves of the little country two months ago by offering unemployed South Korean students fulltime jobs. At the same time it pledged South Korea supplies of rice and enough steel to make South Korea self-sufficient.

Of more than 30,000 South Korean students leaving the university this year, only 600 have secured worthwhile employment.

In these circumstances and with bitterness of the Korean war receding, many South Koreans, in objective Japanese judgment, would rather seek reunion with North Korea than adopt the only other alternative of closer ties with Japan and the risk of reimposed Japanese financial dominance.

France's recognition of North Korea would be a logical extension of recognition of Peking. And it would weaken South Korea's precarious position of the tenuous title of "the only legitimate government of the Korean people" awarded long ago by a majority United Nations vote.

The unhappy Americans, bound by an inflexible foreign policy in the Far East and still nervously supporting the Tokyo-Seoul "normalization" talks which both South Korea and Japan are discarding, seem likely to be cast once more in the role of imperialist villains. (London Sunday Times)

Panama Election Anger Could Spark Civil War

By PENNY LERNOUX from Panama City

Panama is facing the possibility of a civil war over the outcome of this month's presidential and congressional elections.

Supporters of the government candidate, 58-year-old Marco Robles, and 65-year-old Arnulfo Arias, twice president and twice deposed, are eyeing each other menacingly.

Unofficial results from the Electoral Tribunal, the government's vote-counting agency, lists Robles as the winner by an ample margin. But Arias' party refuses to accept these figures, claiming they are the result of a government fraud.

"I accuse the government in general, and am leaving this matter in the hands of the Panamanian people," Arias says.

Violence could well be the outcome of the dispute, Arias says.

His party maintains the Electoral Tribunal could not possibly have had enough time to tally the votes when it gave out its report and as a consequence, widely varying interpretations of the election results were released. Arias' party, for example, claimed a lead of 6,000 votes in Colon, Panama's second largest city. In contrast, Robles' party said it had a victory margin of 4,000 votes there.

Most experienced political observers here believe fraud entered into the elections to some degree. They say it ranges from communications cut-offs to ballot manipulations by the government.

Chamber Favors 'Distinctive Flag'

QUEBEC (CP) — Howard T. Mitchell of Vancouver, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, voiced Wednesday the chamber's support for the idea of a distinctive Canadian flag.

"The adoption of a distinctive flag would mark a step toward a rapprochement between French-speaking and English-speaking Canadians," he said.

Mr. Mitchell spoke at a press conference during a visit to the Quebec City Chamber of Commerce.

He said French-speaking Canadians are right to complain of not being equally represented in Canadian business organizations but that there is a "profound desire" at work leading toward a better understanding of their aspirations by their fellow-citizens.

90-Year-Old Musician

Future Still Holds Lots of Happiness

By KEN JOHNSON

If John L. Brooks needs some music to help celebrate his birthday today, he can always pick up his violin and play—and he's 90.

White-haired Mr. Brooks,

1422 Menzies, owns three violins, a piano, a television set, radio and drives a 1955 Chevrolet.

"What more can I want?" he says. "Looking back over the years I've had a wonderful time and I reckon I've still a lot more happiness ahead."

Born in Illinois, in 1874, Mr. Brooks came to B.C. in 1885. At the age of nine he was helping his father clear a 100-acre site for a farm.

FIVE YEARS

For five years he served on Saanich Council and for seven years he was a member of the Saanich school board.

He was largely responsible through his persistence, in getting the district three high schools—Mount Douglas, Mount View and Mount Newton.

FAMILY OF SIX

For some years he lived in Crofton, B.C., and raised a family of six, two girls and four boys. He has 10 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Once a member of several small dance bands, he now confines his violin playing to his home.

"I still drive, but not at night any more," he says. "I take a rest every year and renew my licence."

Talk Will Be of the 'Old Days'

The old days in which every one gripped but still managed to make the best of it will be discussed by about 75 survivors of the 300 men that left Victoria May 28, 1916, as part of the 15th Brigade, Canadian Field Artillery.

The reunion, which will be held in the Ingraham Hotel, May 30, with president Archie Wills in the chair.

Veterans from as far east as Winnipeg and as far south as San Francisco as well as from Portland, Seattle, the B.C. interior and Vancouver Island points, will attend the reunion, the 49th of its kind to be held.

The brigade served with distinction in France and Belgium during the First World War.

A toast to The Brigade will be proposed by Judge J. B. Clearthorpe with the reply by Albert Puttick, 80, of West Vancouver, a sergeant-major who played a key part in putting the brigade in shape for overseas service. Mr. Puttick served as a major in the Second World War.

The brigade medical officer, Dr. J. M. Fowler, 80, has also promised to attend. In charge of entertainment will be W. C. Hudson, and since no First World War reunion would be complete without a rum ration, Frank Saunders will handle the issue.

To Remain Under Ottawa

Veterans' Hospital Battle Won, Says Chatterton

Veterans' Hospital in Victoria probably will remain under the administrative jurisdiction of the department of veterans' affairs, Esquimalt-Sanich MP George Chatterton said yesterday.

The Tory MP credited the government's apparent change of mind on the matter to "the tremendous response from individuals and veterans organizations in the Greater Victoria area."

"The battle for the time being has been won, but those who opposed an administrative transfer should still remain on guard," said Mr. Chatterton.

STORM OF PROTEST

A storm of protest was raised here when Veterans' Affairs Minister Roger Tillet announced in the House March 18 the government's new policy of transferring the control of veterans hospitals to local authorities.

Veterans feared they would lose much of the special care they are now eligible to receive in the hospital here, if jurisdiction is handed over to a local group.

Mr. Chatterton said the minister apparently realizes now that Victoria Veterans' Hospital is in "a unique position" in that this city has "an extremely high percentage of veterans — almost double anywhere else in Canada."

"Our Veterans' Hospital is filled up now and in a few years its facilities will be inadequate," he said.

"My information is that there will be no change here in the foreseeable future." He declined to divulge his source of information.

When existing facilities at the hospital become overtaken by aging Second World War veterans requiring more attention, the government should build a domiciliary care home for the men adjacent to the hospital, rather than expand the hospital itself, said Mr. Chatterton.

IWA 'Hot' Steam Ban Slows Down Sawmill

PORT ALBERNI—IWA members' refusal to operate machines using "hot" steam has idled about 30 per cent of the workers at the huge Somena division shingle and sawmill here.

Meanwhile, the Office Workers International Union, Local 15, on strike at MacMillan, Blonard and Powell River's Alberni pulp and paper division here, has placed an information picket at the gate of the Somena division.

A spokesman for the company said the IWA had refused to operate machinery using steam generated at the pulp and paper division where office workers are on strike.

The electrically operated planer mill is continuing operations, along with carloading and other areas of the plant. However, the heading and shingle-splitting machinery are affected, with the result that main operations of the mill are down.

HALF IDLED

Approximately 850 men are employed at the Somena division. The company spokesman said that while it is impossible to say exactly how many men are out of work as the result of the shutting down of machines using steam, it is estimated that half the men will be idled.

International vice-president Bill Lowe of the office workers union had expressed regret that settlement had not been reached when union and company officials met Wednesday in Vancouver under chairmanship of deputy labor minister William Sands.

TOO MUCH

He said he had nothing further to say in regards the differences between the employers and employees. "I feel there has been too much criticism from both sides, without enough constructive effort to reach an agreement," he said. "We are ready to resume talks at any time," Mr. Lowe added.

Concert Set For May 28

A musical program has been arranged for the monthly meeting of the Vancouver Island Multiple Sclerosis Society in War Amps Hall, 1610 Oak Bay Avenue on Thursday, May 28, at 8 p.m.

Frank Tupman and Denis Metcalfe are in charge of arrangements.

Among the entertainers will be the popular Patterson family.

Chisholm to Give Humanist View

Victoria's Dr. Brock Chisholm will present the humanist's view point of science at the 47th annual conference of the Chemical Institute of Canada, in Kingston, Ont., June 1 to 3.

Dr. Chisholm will speak in a plenary session of the conference which will explore the Scientist and his Place in Society.

Pylons Pose Puzzle

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — One of the mysteries of the Lower Mainland is what is planned for the 85-foot, 530,000 pylons on the new Port Mann Bridge.

Highways Minister Gagliardi said in an interview Wednesday that the controversial pylons will have the heads of Khamsheer and Mao facing each other.

In the past he has said they will be topped by sculptured fish, Egyptian hieroglyphics, words of wisdom by de Manassant and Khamsheer.

Two Paddleboats Yukon Water Here For Christenings

Two 45-foot, diesel-powered paddleboats, the Yukon Queen and the Yukon Belle, will be commissioned and christened Saturday — with genuine Yukon River water.

The ceremony will be performed at 10 a.m. by the wife of the Lieutenant-Governor, Mrs. George Pearkes, at the Inner Harbor.

The boats, which will be used for tours of the harbor and the George Waterway, from June 1,

SPECIAL DOCK

For the ceremony a new dock has been built along the Causeway and extends 110 feet out. In attendance will be Miss Gwen Carwell, the Yukon Sourdough Queen, and president of the Yukon Sourdough Association, Gordon Lee.

Russ Simpson, general manager of Yukon Queen Tours, said yesterday:

"The boats have been designed in the style of the paddleboats which left Victoria in the gold rush era. In putting on these tours we're trying to retain a little local history."

Forest Industry

Conciliator Suggests Pay-Raise Package

VANCOUVER (CP) — A government conciliator has recommended a 28-cent-an-hour wage increase in a two-year contract as a basis for settlement in a dispute involving 25,000 coastal woodworkers.

The report of E. P. Fisher is to the dispute between the International Woodworkers of America and the Forest Industrial Relations, representing the employers, was released by Labor Minister Peterson here Thursday.

TWO PHASES

It calls for: A 15-cent increase effective June 15; a further 13 cents effective June 15 next year, and 15 cents additional for journeymen tradesmen.

Thus under the recommendation, journeymen would receive 43 cents over two years.

The IWA had demanded a 40-cent overall general increase, plus 30 cents for tradesmen over the current basic wage of $2.08 an hour.

The employers had never announced any wage offer.

Mr. Peterson called the report a "fair basis for settlement."

"I am hopeful that this recommendation will bring about a settlement of this most important contract."

Mr. Fisher was brought in — the first time a conciliator officer had been used in a woodworkers' dispute — at the end of April when negotiations broke down. The union had announced its demands in February.

NO COMMENT

Both parties declined to comment Thursday on Mr. Fisher's recommendations.

They have 15 days in which to tell the government whether they accept or reject the report.

An IWA spokesman said the union will hold a council meeting representing all locals Friday to discuss the conciliation report.

Plenty of Contest Material

This is the time to fish the lakes to gather King Fisherman Contest entries that could win a trip for two by Canadian Pacific Airlines to New Zealand. Two anglers who are getting plenty of contest weathers are, on left, F. E. Peatt, 973 Cowichan Street, and William Geddes, 1170 Yates. They caught these 25 trout at Lower Campbell Lake fishing about two hours each day for three days. Largest weighed just more than two pounds.

King Fisherman

Head for the Lakes!

King Fisherman entries leave no doubts that this is the time to fish the lakes... almost any lake.

Cowichan Lake and Lower Campbell appear to be the best bet, but most lakes are producing fairly well on every thing from the sporty dry fly to gang troll and worm.

Sharing Motion Opposed

Reeve A. C. Wurtele yesterday opposed a resolution by the Inter-municipal committee calling on local councils to share the $5,000 cost of renovating new temporary quarters for the Greater Victoria Family and Juvenile Court.

The money would be used to upgrade accommodation in an existing house on Coldharbour Road, already jointly owned by the four municipalities, which until a few months ago served as the juvenile detention home.

NOW VACANT

It is now vacant and a buyer had been sought until the property was earmarked for use as a family court during the period when construction of a new building for this purpose is under study.

Mayor R. B. Wilson said the move would give the council a "home breathing space" while taking care of the most urgent accommodation needs of the court which is now housed in the basement of the health and welfare building on Cook Street.

LOSE MONEY

Coun. James Bryant of Esquimalt said the proposed changes would probably depreciate the value of the building and thus lose money all round for the municipalities.

"All that we are doing," said Reeve Allan Cox of Oak Bay, "is risking $5,000 to take care of emergency situation which now exists. What we are doing won't depreciate the property."

Reeve Wurtele said his council "would like to co-operate." He added: "But I can't for the life of me see why Esquimalt should not be permitted to use our own council chamber to hear juvenile cases, as we have done for years."

The resulting reduction in the caseload of the present court may render the move to renovated quarters in Coldharbour Road unnecessary, he said.

OUTSIDE CONTROL

"The location in which family court is held must be discussed with the attorney-general's department," said Mayor R. B. Wilson. "It is something we can't even discuss intelligently because it is outside our control."

Coun. Alex Hendry of Oak Bay was authorized to discuss with officials of the attorney-general's department the role to be played by the newly-established Greater Victoria family and juvenile court committee.

Shamrocks Collect 9-9 Tie Against New Westminster

By JIM TAYLOR

NEW WESTMINSTER—Victoria Shamrocks don't win Inter-City Lacrosse games here very often. In fact, it's been almost five years since they fled the

12 Bells Coliseum, Victoria, Friday, May 22, 1964

During the course of my travels I have sat fuming and cursing in traffic jams in London, New York, Paris, Cairo and Sydney.

I have been late for tournaments, dinners, cocktail parties, appointments and dates with the dentist. I have, however, always accepted it in the end as one of the curses of progress and rising standards of living.

But what I cannot, and never will, accept is being kept STANDING in traffic jams. And that is what is happening right now on the golf courses of Britain and the world.

When I was a young tournament pro in the Thirties anyone who needed more than three hours for a round, however important, was considered to be in the last years of his dotage.

What's happened now? Four hours is considered average, five hours is acceptable and six hours—particularly in the United States—is not unknown.

I have only one word for it: disastrous. The trouble all stems from America and the fellow I blame more than anyone is Cary Middlecott, a man of such cautious nature that at shot after shot, even when playing up a perfectly open fairway, he would walk on 150 yards ahead of his ball to survey the territory.

He would then go back to his ball, struggle through vast and lengthy mental turmoil before deciding which club to use, play around 15 practice swings and then strike. His opponent, meanwhile, had time to write four letters and probably take them to the post office as well.

Unfortunately a younger generation of golfers decided that this was the correct way to play golf. Americans began to copy him. And now, to the distress of all of us, young Britons are coming home from the States with the same tardy outlook.

What crass nonsense it all is. How boring for the spectators. And—most important of all—what damage it is doing to many of them.

Golf is largely a matter of complete concentration. And I know nothing more to shatter one's mental grip on a game than to have to hang around, smoking cigarettes and turning the next shot into a nightmare, while waiting for the couple ahead to get off the green.

Playing behind Middlecott is unrelieved agony. Even following Bobby Locke or Tom Burton is not all that easy. But when you're being held up by a couple of no-hopers, you're quite justified in having the red mist clouding your vision.

If you want evidence to the contrary permit me to tell you about Charlie Ward and myself when we were first off at Little Aston, Staffordshire, some years ago. We were out, round and back having a cup of tea in the clubhouse in precisely one and three-quarter hours. And we both returned 71s.

On another occasion at another course I went out first and finished six holes ahead of the next pair with a 71. That time the round took a shade under two hours.

I'm not advocating that all golf should be played at that speed. Personally it suits my temperament better and my scores are probably lower for it. But there is certainly no need, and no excuse, for the present terrible crawl.

The extraordinary thing is that in Britain, there is a P.G.A. regulation framed to prevent it. It states that if any couple fall more than two holes behind the pair ahead of them, then each man should be penalized two shots.

Although the rule has been broken countless times the penalty has never been invoked. I believe the P.G.A. tried to enforce it on one occasion but it caused such a fantastic rumour that the whole thing was hushed up and finally forgotten.

Personally I believe the rule is good sense. Traffic jams on golf courses are the product of neurotic minds and, for heavens sake, let's keep the game healthy.

drafty corridors of Queen's Park arena with two points. Last night Shamrocks came close, playing the first-place New Westminster to a 9-9 overtime tie.

The sawdust followed a 9-4 victory.

Only 1,300 fans showed up for the game, which had several key moments. The teams were 2-2 after the first period and New Westminster had a confident look about them as they headed into the dressing quarters with a 5-3 lead at the half-time interval.

Shamrocks tied the score 5-5 at 7:33 of the third period on a power play but Loftus put New Westminster ahead five seconds after the ensuing faceoff.

BIGGER LEAD
The 6-5 count stood up into the fourth quarter when high-scoring Paul Parnell put New Westminster even farther ahead. Barrie Ashbee then scored Victoria's sixth goal only to have Charlie Saunders open the margin to two goals moments later.

Barrie Ashbee scored again at 8:30 and Tom Collett tied the game at 8-8 to set up the overtime.

CHEAP PENALTIES
Rocks played nine of the first 15 minutes short-handed with some cheap penalties. The game was the fourth in six nights for Victoria. But it has been a prosperous ordeal, with three victories and last night's tie—a drive that has put them within one point of second-place Vancouver.

Lions Sign Two More
VANCOUVER (CP)—The British Columbia Lions of the Western football conference have signed halfback Ron Morris and Canadian centre Ian Hagemoen for the 1964 season.

Morris, a 6-foot 2-inch, 196-pound back from Tulsa, will be starting his first full season with the Lions and his sixth season in the Canadian football league. He signed for one year.

A two-way halfback, pass receiver, and punter, Morris was obtained last season from Toronto Argonauts and was a valuable asset in the Lions' march to the WFC title.

Hagemoen, a graduate of Vancouver junior football, is starting his fourth season with the Lions although he is only 23 years of age. He got a two-year contract.

Victoria carried the play in overtime, which started with the score of 4-4. Playing coach Don Ashbee made it 5-4 for Victoria at 5:49 but New Westminster's Ron Loftus, a newspaper reporter with muscles, tied the score again at 7:45 and that's how it ended, thanks to the monumental save by Chapman.

Barrie Ashbee scored again at 8:30 and Tom Collett tied the game at 8-8 to set up the overtime.

CHEAP PENALTIES
Rocks played nine of the first 15 minutes short-handed with some cheap penalties. The game was the fourth in six nights for Victoria. But it has been a prosperous ordeal, with three victories and last night's tie—a drive that has put them within one point of second-place Vancouver.

Lions Sign Two More
VANCOUVER (CP)—The British Columbia Lions of the Western football conference have signed halfback Ron Morris and Canadian centre Ian Hagemoen for the 1964 season.

Morris, a 6-foot 2-inch, 196-pound back from Tulsa, will be starting his first full season with the Lions and his sixth season in the Canadian football league. He signed for one year.

A two-way halfback, pass receiver, and punter, Morris was obtained last season from Toronto Argonauts and was a valuable asset in the Lions' march to the WFC title.

Hagemoen, a graduate of Vancouver junior football, is starting his fourth season with the Lions although he is only 23 years of age. He got a two-year contract.

Mays Back With Two Home Runs

Well, it just couldn't last. Willie Mays broke out of slump which had seen him hitless in five games and his batting average drop 85 points and yesterday powered San Francisco Giants back into the National League lead.

He got only two hits, but they were his 15th and 16th home runs and No. 16 was the winning run as the Giants came from behind to whip Philadelphia Phillies, 9-4.

Mays connected the first time with a man aboard in the bottom half of the first inning to tie the score at 2-2. Both Wally Bunker his fourth win of a still-unbeaten season but Bunker had to fret for a spell after taking a 7-2 lead into the ninth inning.

Bunker got into difficulties when singles by Nelson Matthews and Ed Charles and a base on balls to Jim Gentile loaded the bags.

BIG HOMER
That brought on a reliever Stu Miller and Manny Jimenez picked the moment for his first grand-slam homer but Miller had things under control from there.

Ortiz got all kinds of help from the Athletics, 10 getting on base through walks and one by being hit by a pitched ball.

Sandy Koufax struck out 11 and ran his career record against New York to 8-0 as Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Mets 6-1.

It was the Dodgers' 35th victory over New York in 39 meetings.

Track Settled Today
Oak Bay and Victoria High Schools appear set for another down-to-the-wire fight for the Inter-High School Track and Field championship when the runners take to the track at Victoria High at 1 p.m. this afternoon.

At the completion of the field events yesterday Oak Bay led Vic High by three-quarters of a point in the standings. Oak Bay has 64 points, Vic High 64.

The Bays also hold a lead in the handicap standings with 77 points. Vic High is second with 64. The handicap is based on school enrolment and attempts to equalize the different sizes of the competing schools.

Only two records fell in the 19 field events. Vic High's Ron Subings bettered his own mark in the open pole vault clearing 10 feet eight inches. Cliff Ridley, also of Vic High, broke Brian White's mark with a 19-foot-one-and-one-half inch leap in the junior broad jump.

THREE FIRSTS
Oak Bay's junior boys led the way for the Bays with three firsts in five events. The standings going into this afternoon's events (handicap points in brackets) have Esquimalt with 36½ points (57), Mount View 30½ (48), Mount Douglas 27½ (51), and Claremont 11½ (24).

NEW YORK (AP)—Mr. Moonlight, a three-year-old who finished seventh in this year's Kentucky Derby, died in his stall at Aqueduct race track Thursday of a ruptured intestine.

The colt had earned the trip to Kentucky by winning the Gotham Mile at Aqueduct in April.

First Half Costs Game
It was New Westminster's fourth straight victory. Shamrocks, down 8-2 going into the third quarter, shook off the cobwebs and rattled in eight goals in the final half hour. But the Rocks couldn't halt New Westminster's potent offence which came up with six more.

Larry Henry led Westminster with four goals. John Smyr had three. Ron Pepper, Mack Tyler and Bob McKean counted a pair each, and Alex Atamenco added a single goal.

Nirmal Dillon made the loudest noise for Shamrocks as he scored four goals. Rod Kilguff fired three while Ranjit Dillon, Al McLean and Charlie Granewell got one each.

Stengel 'Too Old'

MOOREHEAD, Minn. (AP)—Jackie Robinson says New York Mets would do well to get rid of manager Casey Stengel.

The former Brooklyn Dodgers star, here to speak to a college group, said Wednesday a manager must be alert on every play of the game "but at 74 or so you're not too alert."

"In my view, one of the problems of the Mets is Casey Stengel."

Fishing highlight is still the lakes... just about any lake... but there is some spotty salmon fishing about... at Oak Bay, Brothie Ledge, Tent Island, Nanoo-Northwest Bay, Qualicum and Finlayson Arm.

There are fish in the rivers, including some fresh run steelhead in some like the Chemainus and Qualicum Rivers and on the Cowichan the brown trout fishing is moving into its hottest period of the year.

"All you need to do to catch fish here is get out and work at it," says John Ebert of Campbell River.

He reports Lower Campbell good at the snags at the top end below Fry Lake. It has been too cold, wet and miserable for fly fishing there, but a yellow flatfish has worked well.

There has been pretty good trout fishing all over Lower Campbell and Upper Campbell and Buttle was good at the weekend until winds spoiled the fishing.

Fly fishing with a black gnat and now a dry fly has been good below Ladore Falls.

There are lots of cutthroats in Campbell River below the highway bridge, but they have been finicky at taking a fly and one or two fish has been a good evening's catch.

Murray Creek reports the Little Qualicum producing cuts, browns and fresh steelies, in good condition with ample water, but running clear which means sneak up on the fish.

Stan Ross of Great Central Lake says that "from both ends and the middle of Great Central there is good production and plenty of fish are being taken up to seven and eight pounds, mostly cutthroat. Nearly everyone who goes out gets fish."

Trotting in Cowichan Lake is producing good-sized cutthroats and rainbows, although quite a number of dark rainbows are being caught, reports Peter Edwards from Lake Cowichan.

"Fishing is generally very good, but there are lapses during each day making the fishing spotty. Best bet is to spot check along the shores from the foot and head of the lake and stay put when you get action," he advises.

Small spoons and flatfish are producing along with lake trolls and worms and wet fly in Marble Bay.

Nanaimo Lakes are now producing. Quamichan Lake has been a hot spot this year and is still producing well for lake trolls, fly fishermen and float fishermen.

Bass fishing is pretty good in all lakes... St. Mary on Salt Spring, Elk, Beaver, Prospect, Quennell (near Nanaimo) and just coming on slowly at Spider.

The several little lakes on Salt Spring Island have been producing well and Weston (a couple of miles from Fulford along the Beaver Point Road) is in the limelight after Cec Hannay's nine-pounder which leads the King Fisherman Contest.

As well as producing bass, Elk, Beaver and Prospect are giving up some fine trout fishing.

Sooke—Becher Bay fishing was spotty at the weekend. Pedder Bay Marina has a lock on the gate now... no mooring, no launching, no boat rentals until further notice.

The big spring salmon run should just about be hitting Pedder, but the marina closure just about closes those waters for the time being. Pedder Inlet is bounded by the Rocky Point arsenal on one side, the William Head prison and army training camps on the other, and the closed marina in the centre. There is no other access, except by sturdy fast boat from other areas.

Brothie Ledge to Oak Bay has been giving up some good salmon with wire line and heavy weights bouncing the bottom, now becoming a popular fishing method in those waters.

Bob Wright reports the run of springs off The Gap between Chatham and Discovery Islands is the best showing in a couple of months. Tides are right this weekend and anglers have been getting them at depths from six ounces to planer and wire line.

Saanich Inlet has been spotty... a smattering of good-sized springs in the Misery Bay-Chesterfield Rock waters of Finlayson Arm and a lot of big blues in the centre of the inlet, but they are hard to catch. A Stewart's 18-pounder from Chesterfield Rock was VSIAA big fish of last week.

There has been good blue-back fishing off the east side of Tent Island with pinkish hootchie kootchie producing well.

Lantzville and Northwest Bay are still about the best bets for lively fishing for bluebacks. The blues have now shown in French Creek-Qualicum waters and they are also catching the odd good-sized spring salmon in these waters.

Dave Burkmar has been elected new president of RCN Anglers Association, replacing Des Studley who has been posted to the Atlantic Coast.

Five Boys Arrested At Vancouver Meet

VANCOUVER (CP)—At least five youths were arrested Thursday following a violent end to an inter-high school track meet which police said was the "quietest on record."

One 14-year-old girl was knocked unconscious by a blow to the throat when she stepped between two fighting students. She was taken to hospital. Several teachers grappled hand-to-hand with students and one police officer faced a group of about 200 students who were being urged by one youth to jump the officer.

The youth was arrested and charged with obstructing a police officer. Three other youths who fought with teachers were to appear in juvenile court charged with creating a disturbance. A fifth student was charged with being drunk in a public place and was lodged in a juvenile detention home.

Police confiscated a bottle of wine during the meet and "disarmed" five students who carried bean-shooting guns. The bean guns were to be destroyed.

The scuffles broke out as an estimated 22,000 students began leaving the stands at the end of the track meet. About 200 of them were being prompted to jump Cpl. Don Brown, but they dispersed when more police arrived on the scene.

Witnesses at the stadium where the track meet was held said the incident was sparked by at least six older students who were believed to have been drinking.

West Vancouver piled up 249 points to win the meet for the fifth year in a row. John Oliver High School of Vancouver, which led the standings for a time during the day, was second with 208.

Delbrook High of North Vancouver was third with 183, followed by Kitano, Eric Hamber, Prince of Wales, Burnaby South, Sutherland of North Vancouver, Britannia, and Winston Churchill.

'No Thanks'—NFL

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Football League turned down Thursday a proposal of the National Broadcasting Company for an all-star game between the NFL and the rival American Football League.

NBC had offered to donate $500,000 to the Kennedy Memorial Library in exchange for rights to televise a game between teams of stars from the NFL and the AFL.

Pete Rozelle, commissioner of the 14-team NFL, told NBC in a telegram his league "has no interest in your publicized proposal."

The NFL has repeatedly snubbed any offers to play teams from the eight-team AFL, which begins its fifth year of operation this fall.

Family Tug-of-War Over Junior Boyer

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A tall, blonde youth is waiting on the sidelines, anxious to continue the major league tradition of the Boyer family.

The youngest of the seven Boyer boys is Lennie, just out of high school. He hopes to follow in the footsteps of brothers Ken, Cloyd and Cleo.

Lennie, 18, worked out at shortstop for St. Louis Cardinals the past weekend and took his swings from the left-hand side of the plate. The six-foot-two, 175-pounder hit .340 in high school this spring.

Vernon Boyer, the father, said 16 big league scouts watched Lennie recently in a high school game. He said the youth has commitments to work out with the New York Yankees and the Kansas City Athletics.

Brother Ken, star third baseman for the Cardinals, watched Lennie work out.

"It would be nice if he could take over the corner for me in about four years," said Ken, who is nearing 33.

But Cleo and Cloyd may have something to say about that.

Cloyd, the eldest, who made the major leagues in 1949 and pitched for the Cardinals, now is the Yankees' minor league pitching tutor. Cleo, 27, is the Yankees' regular third baseman. Both would like to see Lennie with the American League champions.

Teen Cults Battle In London

LONDON (AP) — The Mods and Rockers, Britain's rival teen-age cults, battled in main streets of at least 10 London suburbs Wednesday night. More than 50 youngsters were arrested.

Police used 40 dogs to break up a battle in Peckham.

Fighting between the Mods and Rockers began during the Easter weekend and erupted in full force at south coast resorts during last weekend's three-day Whitman holiday.

The Mods won the battle of the beaches, and the Rockers are looking for revenge.

The Mods—short for moderns—are well dressed and ride motor scooters. The Rockers wear leather jackets and ride motor-bikes.

Beatle Fan Slashes Citizen on Street

Victoria police are seeking two rather staunch—and dangerous — Beatle fans involved in the knife-slashing of a man on a downtown street early Thursday.

William Maynes, 611 Vancouver, told police he was walking in Pioneer Square just after midnight when approached by two youths who asked him his opinion of the singing group.

Police say Maynes' answer apparently was unsatisfactory, so one of the youths pulled out a knife and slashed Maynes' jacket several times and one stroke apparently scratched his chest.

They fled on foot, but could not be located by a tracking dog. Maynes described his attackers as from 17 to 19 years old, both about five-feet, seven inches tall. One was dressed in dark trousers, and had fair hair, he said.

The other was of medium build and wore dark clothing, Maynes said.

Wind Lashes Nelson Area

NELSON (CP) — Damage estimated to be in the thousands occurred here Wednesday night when a severe windstorm slashed through the valley.

The wind churned through Kootenay Lake, smashing boat-houses and sinking many boats. It smashed down trees and littered streets with branches and glass from broken windows and awnings. One hangar of the Nelson Flying Club was wrecked although damage to the aircraft inside was not extensive.

Island Areas Face Threat of Floods

Heavy snow on Vancouver Island is posing a flood threat to many parts of the island, a snow survey bulletin released by the provincial water resources department said yesterday.

The report said close to four feet of snow was still on the ground at the 2,700-foot level near Jordan River, and at the 2,980-foot level near Cowichan Lake.

The snowpack at higher land was "above to well above average," the report said.

Federal Resources Minister Arthur Laing warned May 5 that heavy levels of snow were posing flood threats on Vancouver Island and the mainland.

Provincial Water Resources Minister Ray Williston denied this the following day, charging

Mr. Laing with creating alarm by crying wolf.

Yesterday's report by hydrologist H. I. Hunter, covering surveys made up to May 15, said:

"The unseasonably cool weather, and the heavier-than-usual watershed snowpacks, have commenced to give cause for concern as to the maximum stages that might be expected on B.C.'s snow-fed rivers."

It said that if temperatures over the next month stay close to seasonal normals, the rivers "should not cause substantial trouble"—but the crests would still be higher than average.

"Should an exceptionally warm air mass blanket B.C. and persist for a week or more, our major rivers could rise to fairly high flood stages."

Speedy Trial Chosen

Clarence William Kraft, third man charged in last month's Saanich bank robbery made his second appearance in Saanich court yesterday, but has yet to plead his innocence or guilt.

He appeared yesterday and elected to be tried for armed robbery before a magistrate. He had a choice of a magistrate, a higher court judge, or a court composed of a judge and jury.

PLEADS NEXT WEEK

He will appear Wednesday to plead to the charge.

Two other men, pleaded guilty to the April 24 robbery earlier this month, and have each been sentenced to 10 years in the penitentiary.

Last week, when Kraft first appeared he was remanded to yesterday, and bail of $18,000 was set. He had asked for $10,000 bail, which he said he may have been able to raise.

"BEFORE I GO"

He said at that time he had business matters to put in order "before I go."

No one has posted the bail, and he has been in Saanich cells between remands.

If Kraft pleads not guilty, the two convicted men may have to be returned from the penitentiary at New Westminster to testify. Police say they do not know how Kraft will plead.

David A. Murdoch, 1675 Myrtle was fined $200 yesterday and his driver's licence was suspended after he pleaded guilty to dangerous driving.

He was charged May 3 after his car went out of control near Mt. Douglas Park, travelled 39 feet in a ditch, crossed the highway, travelled 33 feet in the ditch, flipped through the air and rolled over. His car was a total wreck.

Witnesses told police at the time Murdoch had been annoying them by following too closely, and had earlier been bothering them in Mt. Douglas Park by flicking his lights and honking his horn.

Murdoch claimed he had not been doing this, but had lost control on a wet road surface and flipped over.

Magistrate Oatler suspended Murdoch's licence.

A Saanich youth was sentenced to the young offenders' Unit at Oakalla yesterday after his conviction on charges of breaking and entering and theft, and theft of goods valued at less than $50. The latter charge was for stealing a tire belonging to his own mother.

James Oliver Erdman, 3835 Saul, was convicted earlier this week of his part of a break-in at Gibson's Food Market on the Patricia Bay Highway.

Magistrate Oatler yesterday sentenced him to 18 months definite imprisonment and six months indefinite on both charges. The sentences will run concurrently.

The magistrate said he felt Erdman deserved "one more chance" at the young offenders' unit and should attempt to learn a useful trade while there.

Harvey Willson, 17, who escaped from Colquitz prison unit May 15 was sentenced to an additional four months in jail yesterday, after pleading guilty to escaping lawful custody.

Willson, who was serving a one year definite-two year indefinite term for the possession of stolen goods, walked away from his job at the prison on the afternoon of May 15, but was recaptured by guards a short time later not far from the site.

The Surrey youth was given the same sentence Wednesday by Magistrate Oatler before it was discovered he was only 17, and had first to be officially transferred from juvenile court.

Magistrate Oatler annulled his sentence later Wednesday after learning Willson's age. He was raised to adult court yesterday.

Burglars Get $40 Saw

Two Victoria firms were entered overnight Wednesday, with thieves taking an electric saw at one and leaving empty handed at the other.

A door was forced on a tool shed at 3150 Napier, and the saw—worth $40—taken from Patterson Construction Ltd.

At the Motorsport service station, 1945 Oak Bay, a rear window was broken and the premises ransacked, but nothing taken.

Witnesses Absent

Lawyer Critical Of Trial Delay

By ALAN CAMPBELL

A city lawyer yesterday was critical of magistrate's court procedure in which an accused person who pleads not guilty to an offence is usually not permitted to go to trial immediately, but must wait until the Crown is prepared.

William Haldane was acting on behalf of a waitress charged with permitting liquor on restaurant premises.

Mr. Haldane pleaded not guilty to the charge, and said both he and his client were prepared to proceed with a trial.

FIRST DATE

However, prosecution witnesses—in this case police officers—were not present and Crown Prosecutor Peter Birkett said May 27 would be the first date available.

The alleged offence is summary, rather than indictable, and in such cases accused are usually summoned to appear in court and if convicted face a sentence of a nominal fine or imprisonment for less than two years.

"If people are summoned," said Mr. Haldane yesterday, "they come ready for trial. . . . How often do people have to appear here to suit the police and the prosecution?"

SAME DAY

In most magistrate's court cases, if an accused pleads guilty, the prosecutor reads a police officer's statement to court, and the accused is asked if he wishes to say anything on his own behalf. If not, the case is disposed of that same day.

less the magistrate orders a pre-sentence report from a probation officer or psychiatrist.

When a "not guilty" plea is entered when the accused first appears, he is remanded to a date when all Crown witnesses will be available, and the courtroom itself will be free for an appropriate period of time.

Saanich, Victoria, Oak Bay, Esquimalt and occasionally rural RCMP cases are dealt with in the Saanich court rooms and it is often difficult to find an open day.

NOT AVAILABLE

Frequently, police witnesses are testifying in other higher courts, and are not available to magistrate's court. This time of year, many officers are on annual leave, and trial dates are often postponed until their return.

In addition, the defence lawyers often are busy with other cases in other courts, and cannot appear. They are always asked if a date suggested by the Crown will interfere with their schedules.

When police officers testify, they are either called in on regular patrol duty or appear on their days off.

IN CUSTODY

If an accused is picked up on a serious charge, and cannot raise bail, he is kept in custody until final outcome of the case.

Yesterday, Magistrate William Ostler sympathized with Mr. Haldane, but said if all witnesses in all cases had to be present at the first court appearance, the court building would be filled every day.

Magistrate Ostler hears from 20 to 30 cases on the average, six days a week. Most plead guilty.

COINCIDENCE

By coincidence yesterday, a youth charged with a traffic offence asked the magistrate what would be entailed if he pleaded not guilty.

When told a date would then be set for a trial, he pleaded guilty and was fined.

Many accused persons do this, particularly in minor traffic cases.

Lawyers in the past have complained privately over what they consider unnecessary delay, but most prefer not to be quoted on the matter and not to make an official complaint.

NO PROTEST

Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre, president of the Victoria Bar Association, said yesterday he had heard no formal protest from members of the profession in Victoria.

Mr. St. Jorre said lawyers in Victoria found local magistrates—particularly Magistrate Ostler—"quite willing to hear the defence counsel regarding convenient dates for trial."

Mystery monkey of Florence Lake

Monkey on His Doorstep Along with Colonist

A man at Florence Lake near Langford found a monkey on his doorstep when he went outside yesterday morning to get his Colonist.

Ronald Corbett, 2646 Florence Lake Road, said he thought the monkey was a stuffed doll left outside overnight by one of his children—until he picked it up and found it was alive.

His wife, Mary, placed the chilled and limp little animal inside a cardboard box and set it near the kitchen stove to get warm.

She later fed it some milk and gave it a banana, which it ate.

"I think it is a squirrel monkey. I looked up 'monkey' in the encyclopedia and the squirrel monkey picture looks like the one we've got," said Mrs. Corbett.

"But, I have no idea where he came from. What would a monkey be doing way out here?"

Mrs. Corbett is keeping the monkey in a borrowed bird cage at her home until she can locate its owner.

Preliminary Hearing Set In Criminal Negligence Case

A preliminary hearing into a charge of criminal negligence against a Work Point soldier will open in Saanich court Tuesday.

Rifman, Leslie Franklin Perry, 21, was charged this week after a fatal collision Sunday morning at Douglas and Kenneth.

GIRL VICTIM

Della Mae Hoegi, 19, of 3016 Donald died in hospital after the car in which she was riding was in collision with another at the intersection.

Her boy friend, Walter Allison, 22, of 631 Kenneth was also injured in the crash.

Rifman, Perry appeared before Magistrate William Ostler yesterday and was remanded to Tuesday for the preliminary hearing.

The magistrate fixed bail for the accused at $1,500.

A coroner's inquest in Miss Hoegi's death was adjourned yesterday until June 15 to allow Mr. Allison time to recover from injuries suffered in the crash.

Pathologist Dr. R. B. Roxburgh told the jury Miss Hoegi died of multiple fractures, internal injuries and massive haemorrhage.

She was rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital at 1:30 a.m. and died at 4:45 a.m.

Killarney Lake

Pollution Report Contested

A private engineering firm which reported seepage from the Hartland Road garbage dump is polluting Killarney Lake has misinterpreted test findings, Greater Victoria Intermunicipal committee was told yesterday.

Dr. John Whitbread, senior medical health officer, said metro officials received details of the tests carried out by Willis and Omliffe Engineering Ltd. and found "very definite misinterpretation" in the results obtained by the Victoria firm.

STANDARDS LOW

He said the standards of pollution in the dump area itself, recorded in the engineering survey, "in our opinion are not very high."

Other samples taken in the vicinity of the dump on the Killarney Lake side were recorded at a level lower than the pollution in Prospect Lake, the medical health officer added.

And tests of the waters of Killarney Lake "indicated the water would be fit for drinking."

NOT TRUE

"We know this is not true," said Dr. Whitbread. "We have been testing Killarney Lake water for three years. We know it's cleaner than Prospect Lake but it is still not of a standard fit for drinking."

The engineering firm's tests of Prospect Lake water showed a high level of pollution, but the medical health officer said "we have had higher test results there ourselves."

Dr. Whitbread told the committee that tests conducted show conclusively that pollution in Prospect Lake, which has rendered the water unfit for drinking, stems mainly from septic tanks around the lakeshore.

RUN-OFF TO NORTH

The committee was told all current dumping operations are carried out on the north side of the dump where runoff is away from the built-up area to the south.

The small amount of runoff towards the south originates in a section of a dump which is no longer in use and where all material is in the form of humus—"organic matter that is no longer dangerous" as a source of pollution, Dr. Whitbread said.

A public health engineer from the provincial department earlier this week confirmed in a report to the metro health board that drainage from the dump is predominantly to the north.

Dr. Whitbread said in assessing the relative merits of the reports it is important to consider that the Victoria firm is "engineering trained" while the B.C. expert and those of the metro health board have public health training.

A further report on the situation at the Hartland Road dump, which Dr. Whitbread reaffirmed was not a public health menace, will be dealt with by the respective health and welfare committees of Saanich and Victoria.

Services Meeting Favored

Greater Victoria Intermunicipal committee yesterday went on record as favoring an early meeting of local councils with Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell to discuss joint sewer and other services. The minister earlier announced such a meeting would be held to seek co-operation of municipalities and residents of unorganized territories.

25-Storey Apartment Planned

Tentative plans for a 25-storey apartment on Pandora in the downtown area were disclosed yesterday in a letter to city council.

Lawyer D. A. M. Patterson, acting for clients whom he said could not be identified at this stage, asked council to waive regulations which now limit apartments in this area to six storeys.

His letter said the single tower containing 164 low-rental suites is planned for a site bounded by Cormorant, Blanshard and Pandora. It would be more than four times as high as the B.C. Hydro building across the road.

Big Day for Ribbon-Snipping

Welfare Minister Wesley Black yesterday cut the ribbon on an emergency project at Jordan River which is the first of its kind in Canada.

Agency Chairman Tobin, Mayor Wilson

It's a federal emergency stockpile of medical stores and equipment from which a 200-bed emergency hospital could be established in the event of a nuclear or other major disaster.

Reason for its location at Jordan River is that prevailing winds would prevent the white, flat-roofed building from being affected by nuclear fallout.

Government and civil defence workers unloaded the tons of equipment after Mr.

Medical Store Stockpile Could Become Hospital

Black, before a small group of civic and public health officials, declared the project in use.

The building, designed for long-term storage, will contain supplies sufficient for an estimated 30 days.

Using this equipment, a hospital could be quickly established in a suitably sized building, such as a junior or senior high school.

There are two special Civil Defence emergency health service vehicles available, so that equipment and supplies could be transported anywhere in the event of the project being needed.

The unit could also be used to supplement the facilities of existing hospitals, in addition to serving as an independent unit.

A group of volunteers have been trained in essential medical care if and when they are needed to staff the hospital.

Components of the $85,000 stockpile include supplies and equipment for emergency treatment, 10 completely stocked 20-bed wards for shock and holding surgery including three operating suites, an X-ray laboratory, a clinical laboratory, central sterile supply, reception, medical and administrative records, auxiliary power generators, 1,500-gallon collapsible water tank and pumping unit and resuscitation and anaesthesia equipment.

The government hopes to establish hundreds of these units throughout Canada, including about 20 in B.C.

Teen-Age Girls' Home Gift of Kiwanis Club

Victoria's first home for teen-age girls—purchased by the Victoria Kiwanis Club for the Family and Children's Service—was officially opened yesterday by Mayor R. B. Wilson.

The home, on Glasgow near Finlayson, will house six permanent residents and a house mother, and is geared to provide a home environment for girls who have not been able to function in their own homes, or who come from broken homes.

The house, provided by the men's club at a cost of about $20,000, has eight rooms plus two bathrooms. It has been newly decorated and furnished to provide as pleasant an atmosphere as possible for the girls.

W. T. Lawson, supervisor of group homes for the Family and Children's Service, said the house was opened on the principle that some disturbed adolescents function better in a group than in their individual family environments.

He said this is the first girls home built in Victoria, but there are three similar homes for teen-age boys.

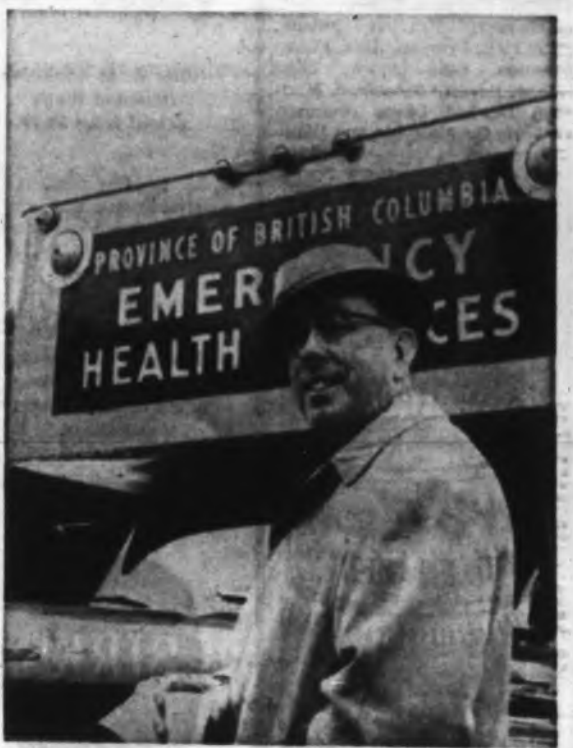

Mrs. Evelyn Groome will live at the house as "house parent" for the girls, aged 14 to 17.

In opening the house, Mayor Wilson said the project was "indicative of the part played by the Victoria Kiwanis Club in this community."

"A debt is owed them by the city, as well as by the girls who will live here," Mr. Wilson said.

The home will probably start with two girls, and this number will go up as the need arises.

Mr. Lawson said the number of girls at the home will be kept as small as possible in order to be able to provide individual attention to the girls.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: What shall we do about our 15-year-old daughter? Last year Josephine started to run around with a 19-year-old boy who worked the night shift at a filling station down the street. The boy is no good.

My husband and I both told Josephine a dozen times that she must not see him but she tried to sneak out the bedroom window at midnight and even later. Twice my husband had to go down to the station and bring her home.

Last week the boy was arrested for stealing out of the cash register and forging his boss' name to cheques. We were relieved when they came and got him.

Josephine is taking this awfully hard. Her appetite is poor and she cries all the time. I feared this morning that she has been sleeping in the dress she wore the last time she was with him. She says it smells of gasoline and brings back pleasant memories.

What shall we do with her? —UNHAPPY PARENTS.

Dear Parents: This girl is out of control and has been for a long time. She needs the skilled help of a professional.

Gray, and her grandmother, Mrs. E. Gray. Mrs. B. Wiley, mother of the groom elect, also received carnations.

Refreshments were served from a table centred with silver candelabra and mauve candles and flanked by bud vases of yellow rosebuds. Mrs. C. Collington and Mrs. E. Harvey, honored guest's aunts, poured.

counselor—and she needs it now. Call your city health department for guidance.

Dear Ann Landers: Please print my letter for other wives who may be getting fed up with dishes, kids, laundry, in-laws, church work and a tired husband.

I had a cheap and revolting affair with a man I've known for years. He, too, was married but swore he had been in love with me since college. I fooled myself into believing my life was dreary and unexciting and that I needed a new romance to restore my joie de vivre.

After two clandestine meetings I felt ashamed and degraded. When he told me about three of my good friends with whom he has had affairs I was so shocked at his lack of integrity that it made me ill.

I've closed the door on that part of my life for good, but how can I be sure he will not gossip about me as he did the others? Please answer my letter in print but make no reference to the city. Thank you. —LESSON LEARNED.

Dear Learned: You can't be sure, but you can hope that a man with a big mouth will not be believed.

A damaged reputation is often the result when people operate outside the framework of behavior that is acceptable in our society.

You say you have learned your lesson and I hope it's true. Consider yourself fortunate. The price you paid is relatively modest measured against the number of women who have lost everything for doing the same thing.

Dear Ann Landers: My parents are fine people of limited means. My husband's parents are well-to-do and have made it clear that they have nothing in common with my parents so we do not have them over together.

Our little girl who is 18 months old is the first grandchild on both sides so all four grandparents make quite a fuss over her. Whenever my in-laws come to the house, they bring expensive toys, silk and organdy dresses, fancy bonnets and so on. My parents bring nothing but their smiling faces and their loving hearts.

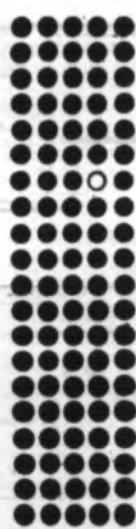

Do you feel that when the child gets older she will be partial to the grandparents who bring the gifts? I worry about this and would like your opinion. —YOUNG MOTHER.

Dear Young: Love, respect and affection cannot be bought—and children are less susceptible than adults. It's how people treat us that determines what we feel about them. If your parents are loving and kind to your child this is enough.

Bride Carries Orchids

A cascade bouquet of pink cymbidium orchids and white stephanotis enhanced with egg-shell-toned ribbon was carried by Phillis Meiba Lange when she exchanged marriage vows with Mr. Lorne Phillip Hudson. The bouquet was designed by her brother, Mr. Glen Lange.

Given in marriage by another brother, Norman, the bride wore a classic peau de sole gown.

The fitted bodice featured high neckline and lily point sleeves. A slim, floor-length skirt had a chapel train that extended from a self-fabric bow at back waistline. Simplicity of the gown was highlighted with re-embroidered Alencon lace appliques on bodice and skirt. The chapel-length silk illusion net veil had scalloped edges. It misted from a tiara of pearls and crystals.

The bride wore a gown of misty sheer nylon styled with short gathered sleeves and scoop neckline that was enhanced with hand-applied trim. The full skirt extended to a slight train from a self-fabric bow at back. Her bouffant silk net veil pouffed to shoulder-length from a satin wedding band headpiece. NEW YORK (UPI) — Dr. Margaret Mead suggested today that Jacqueline Kennedy become the United States cultural ambassador and devote her time and talent to work in the arts. Dr. Mead, a noted anthropologist, was one of 27 specialists in domestic affairs recently named to provide President Lyndon Johnson with fresh ideas from outside governmental apparatus. "Mrs. Kennedy has the youth and the flair and the imagination to create a new role for herself, one that is more fully individual than the one through which she became known at home and abroad," Dr. Mead said. "No one can choose for her, but Americans can hope that the choice she herself will make will lie in the realm of the arts—both the fine arts and the arts of living that make the world pleasanter and more enjoyable." Dr. Mead said that the former first lady would be highly qualified to assume this responsibility because of her "command of other languages, her sensitivity to other cultures, her imaginative grasp of style."

Late Arrival Starts Australians Boiling

(Times News Service)

MELBOURNE, Australia.—By the time the orchestra played Over the Rainbow, the audience was hooting and Judy Garland had stalked off the stage. Besieged by reporters at her hotel she told them "I think you stink!"

The sour notes didn't end with Miss Garland's concert Wednesday night.

The box office was besieged for refunds Thursday and the head of the Musicians' Union said the Australian orchestra that accompanied the singer had never been so humiliated.

Miss Garland herself commented, "I didn't like it, did you?"

The American singer's travel began when she arrived an hour late. Her manager blamed it on a sore throat. "You're late," he said. "You're late," he said.

Most of the crowd of 7,000 was with her during the first half of the concert, but only performance in Melbourne. But some didn't appreciate her id-getting with the microphone cable or her side banter.

"Sing, sing!" and "get on with it!" a few shouted, and soon the auditorium resounded with slow, prodding clapping.

The crowd had paid about $15,000 Australian ($36,300) to hear her sing. She tripped while mounting the stage and sang in a voice which critics today described as "harsh and raspy."

Occasionally she fluffed a note as a steady stream of people walked out of the hall.

The only explanation she offered the crowd for their long wait was: "I could not get out of the hotel."

The explanation came in response to an irate member of the audience who shouted: "You're late."

The audience's mood wasn't improved when Miss Garland took a half-hour intermission. She sang three more songs on her return, but the lyrics were fragmentary and the customers began drifting to the doors.

Miss Garland curtly left without any farewell, letting the orchestra play Over the Rainbow—her theme—by itself. The musicians departed amid howls.

J. D. Thomson, secretary of the Victoria branch of the Musicians' Union, said Thursday that whenever Miss Garland "messed up a song" she blamed it on the orchestra.

"I was so angry I felt like going onto the stage and taking the band off," he said.

Miss Garland's manager, Karl Brent, said the audience should have accepted her apology for being late.

"Miss Garland would have stood there and sung all night if they had wanted her to," he said.

He added that there would be no refunds because "Miss Garland gave a satisfactory performance."

Early Thursday morning, when reporters knocked at the door of her hotel room, Miss Garland said: "Why don't you go away. I'm very tired. I haven't slept one wink."

Seconds later she added: "I think you stink!" Then she slammed the door on them.

French Gangsters Truly Meticulous

By IAN STREET

French gangster movies have a special flavor all their own.

Any Number Can Win, now showing at the Fox Cinema, is no exception.

It is the story of a robbery executed in a gambling casino in the south of France. The robbers are veteran Jean Gabin, older and heavier now but still a figure of immense authority on the screen, and latterday heartthrob Alain Delon.

There's a precision to the whole robbery sequence that is very Gallic. It brings to mind the meticulous detailing of a safecracking portrayed in another French crime movie, Rififi.

Of violence there is none, though the threat is always present. The setting is the glittering pleasure haunts of the Mediterranean coast. For decoration: a dozen lovely dancers. The ending: a neatly turned surprise.

Enjoyable escapism fare.

Garden Notes

Dead Won't Lie Down

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRAS

Planting up the flower beds out front used to be a simple enough business in bygone days. You cleaned up the beds in the fall, and if you were very ambitious or wanted to take a few inches off your wasteline, you dug them over, leaving them rough-dug for the winter rains to penetrate and the cleansing frosts to get in their ticks. In the spring, the beds were raked over, then some weekend in late May you'd come home with a few dozen petunias or snapdragons planted, dug them in the ground, and that was that.

Thanks to the superb salesmanship of the bulb growers and dealers, though, things aren't so simple any more.

During the fall months, everywhere you turn you find cartons and pictures of tulips and daffs. Drug stores, supermarkets, department stores and garden centres all show eye-catching displays of them. So we fall for the lure of early spring color in the garden, buy ourselves a quantity of plump brown bulbs, and plant them.

Through the late winter and early spring months we thrill to the sight of our bulbs poking their little green noses through the soil. We take our reward in the form of glorious splashes of color and armfuls of cut flowers for the house.

Then, as the days pass and the flowers fade, we sit around twiddling our thumbs wondering how to get rid of the tulips so we can get the petunias planted. Other folks who didn't plant bulbs are getting the pick of the bedding plants, and we worry for fear there won't be much left in the garden shops and centres by the time the tulips decide to call it a day and pack up.

The temptation is strong to amputate the plants at ground level with a sharp knife, but if you take this drastic action, you'll get no bulb flowers next year.

As I have pointed out before, the important time in the life of any bulb is the period immediately after flowering, for this is the time when the leaves are busy manufacturing nutrients to plump up the exhausted bulb—recharging the batteries for next year, so to speak—and it would be the height of folly to chop down the top—the food factory—just when they are at their production peak.

This is why you mustn't mow the grass in areas where bulbs are naturalized until the bulb foliage turns color and dies down naturally, its work for the year completed.

What can you do, then, to tidy up the beds in which daffs and tulips have been flowering? Well, if you have a healthy bank account, you could look upon your bulbs as expendable, dig them up and leave them over the back fence.

Or you could dig them up very carefully, taking a good ball of soil around the bulb and roots, and transplant them to a row in the vegetable plot out back to complete their growth in decent privacy. I should warn you, though, that a bulb in full growth is not the easiest subject in the world to transplant successfully, and if the job is not done with gentle fingers, the topgrowth will die down immediately, leaving the bulbs hungry and unsatisfied.

Probably the most satisfactory solution is to interplant tallish annuals among the bulbs, where their growth will serve to hide the fading bulb foliage. This is a rather messy-looking arrangement at first, while the bulb foliage is still very much in evidence, but it isn't for long. As soon as the bulb foliage turns color, the dead tops can be cut off an inch below soil level, leaving the annual flowers in undisputed possession of the bed.

JACK SMITH Dares to Question Science

Nobody Loves a Fly, But...

In this age, when science is the new deity, one hesitates to question any of its oracles.

Science is good for us. Pesticides are good for us. The H-bomb is good for us.

So I hope I won't be rapped over the knuckles for saying I'm worried about this idea of breeding wasps to kill off our houseflies.

This project is being conducted by entomologists of the University of California at Riverside. I'm sure it is honorable in purpose. But I hope the professors have considered all the possibilities.

It may be blasphemy, but I don't believe science is infallible. The nuclear physicists are the unchallenged elite of the new priesthood, but can we say that, so far, they have made life any lovelier on this earth?

The experiment at Riverside is said to be American science's first attempt to control houseflies by breeding their natural enemy—a little wasp that is native to the West Indies.

Nobody loves a housefly. Of all the creatures with which man is familiar in everyday life, this noisy little brute is doubtless the least appealing. The fly is one of the few five things a decent man can kill without a twinge of conscience.

Now the Riverside entomologists have turned some of these West Indian wasps loose on a chicken ranch.

Through the summer they will be counting wasps and flies at the ranch. If the flies decrease and the wasps increase, they will know the experiment is a success.

Success is exactly what I'm afraid of. Are we quite sure we want more wasps? How do we know the wasps won't get out of hand, like the housefly? What are the wasps' natural enemies? What if they don't have any?

These little schemes for manipulating the balance of nature sometimes go awry.

In Hawaii, for example, they had a rat problem a few decades ago. So they imported a few pairs of Indian mongooses—those bloodthirsty little Asiatic weasels—to eat the rats.

But rats are nocturnal, and mongooses are diurnal. Nobody had thought of that. The mongooses never bothered the rats. The mongooses slept all night while the rats labored and multiplied, and then the mongooses labored and multiplied all day while the rats slept. They used to wink at each other on the way to and from work.

The mongoose problem became as big as the rat problem. I believe the cobra is the natural enemy of the mongooses, but apparently nobody thought of importing any cobras.

In a way, that's too bad. Now this fabled paradise is infested not only with rats and mongooses but also with tourists.

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Pride After a Fall

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Alain Delon, the handsome French star, fell down a mountain 10 miles from Marcellus, tore the muscles of his right leg, and is out of his picture Have I the Right to Kill? for a week or so. The accident happened during a scene where, ironically, Alain as a French legionnaire was rescuing a wounded comrade. He was running full pelt on top of a ridge and slipped. When he is better and when he completes his picture, he will fly to Japan and the Philippines to launch The Love Cage in which he proudly co-starred with Jeanne Moreau. After that to Italy for his sequence with Shirley MacLaine in The Yellow Rolls Royce. Looking at Shirley in her current What a Way to Go movie, she gets more and more Japanese in her make-up. This could be the influence of husband Steve Parker who makes most of his movies in Japan.

Gig Young, the new father—wife Elaine recently presented him with his first child, a girl—can't get used to the idea of fatherhood. He was saying on the set of Strange Bedfellows in which he stars with Rock and Lella, "I rushed home from the studio yesterday, I was greeted by Elaine. Then I heard a great racket, and I said, 'What's that strange noise?' 'That,' said Elaine, 'dead-pa,' is your daughter crying."

They keep nominating Granny Irene Ryan for her role in The Beverly Hillsbillies. "But I never win anything," she complains. However, all that money she makes on her personal appearances is a big consolation, including the $100,000 she will receive for four weeks at the Sahara in Vegas next month. . . . Deanna Douglas who plays the beautiful but dumb blonde in the Hillbillies is doing okay too. She recently spent $5,000 on a beady dress for her personal appearance tour this summer. What with the show and everything, this blonde will salt away more than $100,000 this year.

Rayley Mills is smiling all over her pretty face. She is now an aunt, courtesy of married sister Juliet.

I shall be interested in seeing Marion Brande in Bedtime Story, his first real comedy. I have always preferred him on the dramatic side. I thought he was dreadful when he tried to be a cutup in Mutiny on the Bounty. But Bedtime Story was written and produced by Stanley Shapiro, a master of comedy and responsible for those Black Hudson-Doris Day gems, so we may be in for a treat.

Three girls in a fountain—Carol Lynley, Ann Margret and Pamela Tiffin. The picture they are currently making in Spain, The Pleasure Seekers, is a remake of Three Coins in a Fountain. Which seems rather far fetched, because the latter was about the famed fountain in Rome where you throw in a coin to ensure your return to the eternal city. But anything is possible in or out of Hollywood. I'm wondering who will get top billing. Each girl is beautiful, talented—and temperamental.

They want Stephen Boyd to play the villain in The Golden Horde, and Omar Sharif the hero. This is holding up the signing at Columbia. Steve was a villain in Ben Hur, of course, but he has played nice roles ever since.

Kim Novak wouldn't say no to starring in The Sandpiper for Marty Ransohoff. The entire picture will be filmed in Carmel, in northern California, where Kim lives most of the time. The only obstacle is Ransohoff's statement to me not long ago that after one movie with Kim, "No more if I can help it."

Omar Sharif, the Egyptian actor with the burning eyes, has been cast to play the zealous young priest in the movie version of the controversial play, The Deputy. Anatole Litvak is directing—in Rome.

Winning Contract

By HOWARD SCHENCK and RICHARD L. FREY

Slams his clubs are often hard to reach.

With aces in the side suits, South decided to encourage North to bid a slam.

North's four spade bid was a singleton and the game was based on fear of trump losers, so he bid the slam.

After winning the spade lead, declarer drew trumps and was able to ruff his fourth heart and his spade loser in dummy, losing only a diamond trick to make his contract.

Why didn't the experts bidding this hand use the Blackwood convention? From North's viewpoint, the diamond K-Q (or a singleton) would be as good as the ace; while from South's point of view, Blackwood couldn't discover the trump king or a singleton spade. By using cuebids, they were able to find the excellent fit.

Heraldic Experts

Are Authentic

By STEWART MACLEOD

OTTAWA (CP)—If the government brings in a new Canadian flag featuring three red maple leaves on a white background, there isn't likely to be any argument from the experts in heraldry.

Canada's official emblem is three maple leaves conjoined on a single stem. The country's national colors are white and red. And the combination of colors and leaves have been used in various ways on distinctive Canadian devices since 1867.

Although there's no authoritative explanation, the three-leaf idea is suggested as symbolizing the unity of English, French and other ethnic groups in a single Canada.

SINCE 1867

The heraldry enthusiasts are more likely to raise their voices in protest if the flag is decorated with two blue bars at each side—a design Prime Minister Pearson has said he has a "hankering" for although he agrees it's not proper from heraldry viewpoint.

One long-time student of heraldry has written to a member of Parliament saying it would be "unthinkable" to add blue to the official red and white. Anyway, says the letter, two vertical blue bars do not represent the "sea-to-sea" motto—that job is done by a wavy horizontal line.

'DISTINCTION'

And to complete the argument against the blue, he says: "The assumed 'distinction' of extending from sea to sea is shared by 42 other nations."

But Parliament can adopt any design it wants, regardless of heraldry.

Requiem Mass Today for Priest

Prayers were said last night in Hayward's Chapel and requiem mass will be sung at 11 a.m. today in St. John the Baptist Church, 301 Richmond, for Brother Ethelbert Caddigan, who died Tuesday in St. Joseph's Hospital.

He was 63. Born in Hamilton, Ontario, Brother Ethelbert entered the Franciscan Order as a postulant in Edmonton in 1948. He began his novitiate in St. Francis Friary, Vancouver, in 1952, taking his simple vows in 1953 and making his solemn profession in Edmonton in 1954.

He came to Victoria in August, 1962, to St. Joseph's Friary, but had been suffering from ill health for the past five years. Mass will be conducted by the Very Rev. Father Wenceslaus Sebastian, provincial, of the Franciscans in western Canada.

Tourist Bureau Nightmare

While We Shivered...

If you thought Victoria was cold yesterday, you're dead right. It was the second coldest place in Canada. (See Page 2.)

Only St. John's, Newfoundland, had a lower daytime temperature—45 degrees compared to Victoria's 48.

Even Whitehorse, in the Yukon, was warmer with a 51-degree temperature.

...Prairies Sweltered

WINNIPEG (CP)—Residents of the tiny southern Manitoba community of Gretna sweltered in a 96-degree temperature as many points in the province Thursday broke existing high record temperatures.

The weather office in Winnipeg reported Thursday night the temperature in the community, situated on the Canadian-

United States border about 20 miles south of here, broke the previous May 21 record of 90 set in 1955, 1956 and 1961.

In Winnipeg a 34-year-record fell as 94.8 was reached breaking the previous high of 91 set in 1959.

The 94.8 reading was the highest in Winnipeg since Aug. 14, 1961 when 97.3 was recorded, the weather office said.

Parolee Lies Near Death

QUINCY, Mass. (AP)—A long-term criminal, paroled six weeks ago after being termed a classic example of rehabilitation, lay near death Thursday night, hit by a car as he crossed a street with the Canadian-born woman who had waited to marry him.

Joseph A. Flaherty, 41, was paroled from Walpole state prison April 3 after serving 13 years of a 36- to 46-year sentence for rape, robbery and assault.

LED REVOLT

A few years ago he was considered one of the toughest convicts in the Massachusetts prison system. He helped lead an 85-hour rebellion at the old Charlestown state prison in 1955.

When he was paroled, Warden John A. Gavin said "in all my 20 years in the correction field I have never met a man who so thoroughly followed out his promises to straighten out."

WED CANADIAN

Flaherty married Frances McKearney, 33, a native of Peace River, Alta., soon after being paroled. They had become acquainted by mail after she sent him a Christmas card in 1955 from Peace River.

Flaherty credited much of his rehabilitation to her faith in him.

The accident occurred Thursday as Flaherty, on his way to work as a compositor at the Quincy Patriot Ledger, was crossing a street with his wife. The hospital said he suffered head injuries, two broken legs and internal injuries.

City Man Rhodes Scholar

Winner of this year's Rhodes scholarship at UBC is English honors graduate John Edward Chamberlin, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Chamberlin, of 515 Transit. The student was educated in Victoria, including a year at Victoria College, before going to UBC. He plans to study English at Oxford. A list of other Victoria and Island graduates appears on Page 22.

Watch on Reds

From AP, UPI

Coupled with a stern warning in the UN Thursday that the United States will defend the countries of Southeast Asia from Communist aggression so long as they request help came a Washington announcement that U.S. jet planes are keeping a high-flying watch on Pathet Lao forces in Laos.

Deeply concerned by the trouble boiling up in Southeast Asia, the U.S. state department Thursday joined its major allies in calling for a meeting of the 14 signatories to the Geneva Agreement under which Laos is neutralized.

And, in Paris, French foreign minister Couve de Murville called on the major powers yesterday to guarantee neutralization not only for Laos but for all of former French Indochina.

Reporting to a cabinet meeting on a French note to Britain and Russia, co-chairman of the Geneva Agreement, Couve de Murville said:

NO OTHER SOLUTION

"There is no other solution to the Laos problem than neutralization by the big powers. It is the sole guarantee of peace."

Although the Western Big Three seemed in loose agreement on the necessity for a conference on the Communist-caused Laos crisis, the Soviet Union has announced support for continued coalition rule of the Asian kingdom.

SOVIET WARNING

Moscow coupled this with a warning against the exclusion of any Laotian political element, a reference to the pro-Red Pathet Lao faction that has been boycotting the coalition.

Speaking in the UN Security Council U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson said that his government takes "a grave view" of events in Laos. "Those responsible have set foot upon a dangerous path," he warned.

EXERCISE IN STUPIDITY

Soviet delegate Nikolai Fedorenko told the council that Stevenson's speech was an exercise in stupidity suitable only for those "who tell stories to little children and village idiots."

Sugar Price Drops Again

MONTREAL (CP)—Three major Montreal sugar refiners have announced a sharp reduction in the wholesale price of sugar—90 cents to $11.60 a 100-pound bag. It was the third cut in as many days.

The last price change by the three refiners—Canada and Dominion, St. Lawrence and Atlantic—was a 25-cent reduction to $12.50 a 100-pound bag.

Panama Envoy Shoots Editor

Panama ambassador to UN Aquilino Boyd shot and wounded newspaper editor Ecolastico Calvo after they exchanged hot words from cars in Panama City traffic jam. Boyd, alarmed by bystander, then beat Calvo with blackjack. He'll probably be charged with attempted murder.

Not Ruble To UN -Kremlin

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The Soviet Union announced again Thursday night that it won't pay a ruble of its $52,600,000 arrears on United Nations Congo and Middle East peace-keeping accounts.

The Soviet UN delegation issued a statement saying the expenses for the two operations are illegal "and the Soviet Union has no intention to share them."

The other nine countries in the Soviet bloc owe total arrears on the peace-keeping operations of $18,700,000. Cuba, which follows the Soviet lead, owes $444,000.

France has paid for the Middle East costs but has refused up to now to pay $16,100,000 on The Congo costs.

Columbia

River Treaty Certain

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons committee study of the Columbia River treaty was virtually completed Thursday and there was strong evidence after 50 meetings since April 7 that it will pass as expected without one vote having been awayed.

External Affairs Minister Martin reiterated his support for the 1961 treaty with the United States and the protocol signed in January.

SECRET SESSION

Now, the external affairs committee stands adjourned until its steering group puts together a report for discussion at a secret session of the 35-member committee.

Only the New Democrats back the treaty. One possible dissident, Lawrence E. Kindt (PC-Macleod) said Thursday he was not too happy about some features of the deal with British Columbia and the U.S.

'Pearson Flag' Picked, But ...

Still Tightly Furlled

OTTAWA (CP)—The cabinet approved a maple leaf flag for Canada Thursday but the House of Commons was left no wiser about its detailed design.

Prime Minister Pearson told reporters after a three-hour morning cabinet meeting the cabinet had unanimously agreed on a design, which will be embodied in a resolution to be submitted to the Commons next week.

Mr. Pearson also said that if reporters asked him the Commons Thursday to describe the design, he would do so in general terms.

But no one asked him point-blank during the House question period for the details.

Instead, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker quizzed the prime minister about the circumstances surrounding a dinner party Mr. Pearson gave last week for some journalists, at which the Liberal leader's personal preference for the flag was displayed and discussed.

HIS FLAG

Mr. Diefenbaker called it Mr. Pearson's personal flag, and Mr. Pearson said that was not so. The cabinet had decided on a design, he added, which would be submitted to the Commons soon.

Mr. Pearson said his preview for some reporters was just a social occasion, and he hoped the reporters had as good a time at his house as they did whenever they visited Mr. Diefenbaker.

TEA-AND-FLAGS

"We had a cup of tea," Mr. Pearson said, "and some discussion about flags and emblems did come up."

Let the People Decide!

Dear Prime Minister: I Want Flag Plebiscite

Though the Daily Colonist takes the editorial stand that the Canadian Red Ensign should be retained as Canada's flag it recognizes the right of every Canadian of voting age to express his personal and free views on the matter.

The Colonist firmly believes that the choice of a national symbol is something that cannot and must not be left in the hands of politicians to decide under partisan duress.

The only way to remove this issue from the realm of politics is for a national plebiscite to be held, in which every Canadian citizen can make his or her own desires known to the government.

Colonist readers who support this view are urged to complete the coupon form below.

Simply clip it, sign it and enclose it in a stamped envelope addressed to The Rt. Hon. Lester B. Pearson, House of Commons, Ottawa.

Dear Prime Minister:

I am in favor of a national plebiscite to decide upon the selection of a Canadian national flag.

'They Found I Was A Writer'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Ben Metcalfe, newspaper man turned publicist, said Thursday he was badly beaten when guests at an "LSD party" discovered he was a writer.

He was commenting on testimony given by accordionist Leo Aquino at the San Francisco trial of Bernard Roseman and Bernard Copely, charged with smuggling and sale of LSD, a hallucination-producing drug.

ambulance was called and Metcalfe was taken to the Hollywood hospital. Aquino testified at the trial of Roseman, 30, and Copely, 38, who are charged with smuggling and sale of LSD.

The witness said the LSD party was arranged by Copely and Roseman and that Roseman had said that LSD would be valuable in learning new languages.

Aquino said that the Joshua

Filibuster Threatened

'We Want a Holiday'

OTTAWA (CP)—The government received a veiled ultimatum from a New Democratic Party MP Thursday—either plan now for summer holidays for MPs or face a hot-weather filibuster on government legislation.

Arnold Peters, 42-year-old trade unionist who helped change Parliament's divorce machinery by an all-out blockade of divorce bills, said Prime Minister Pearson should set the dates for a six-week or eight-week summer break in Parliament's business, then list the essential legislation that should be passed right away.

With an agenda and a definite holiday break before them, MPs would get cracking on the important legislation, he said. The debate arose during consideration of an interim supply bill, giving the government spending money for the month of June. The bill went through all stages and was passed by the Commons.

Mr. Peters warned that if the government sticks to its present list of some 34 priority items before a summer recess, the next two months would be spent but he was prepared to support it.

The committee will present its report to Parliament which then will ratify the treaty and protocol. The government will stand or fall on the documents as now arranged—no changes will be permitted—and has set Oct. 1 as the deadline for getting them through Parliament.

By Oct. 1, the U.S. will pay B.C. $274,800,000 in advance for a 30-year sale of power and add another $89,000,000 for flood-control protection. All this will cover the cost of three B.C. storage dams and leave something besides to start installing power-generating equipment as one of them.

Mr. Martin aimed most of his statements at treaty criticism from Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton who was in the committee room at the end, as he was most of the time.

Mr. Martin said the general has played a large part in Canadian affairs but he could not agree with him on this issue.

The general's own preference in development would produce nine per cent more power but that power would cost 16 per cent more. He must reject other points raised by the general, he said, although he had been helpful in making sure that the treaty and protocol were adequately scanned.

Mr. Martin called for a unanimous vote on the committee findings.

TO CALL TENDERS

The committee heard Thursday that tenders could be called now on two of the three storage dams in B.C. and that tenders for building the third and largest at Mica Creek could be called shortly.

pleted, would be operating in 1973.

The committee itself heard strong expert views on both sides of the treaty fence and much of the criticism followed the line of Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, the prosecution's star witness.

He was the man credited with obtaining the principle of a 50-50 split for Canada on the benefits created in the U.S. by Canadian river control.

But he broke publicly with the treaty makers in April, 1962, when he was retired as head of the Canadian section of the International Joint Commission where he had been intimately connected with events leading up to—and including—the treaty negotiations.

The federal and B.C. governments said the treaty scheme of development produced less power but was more attractive economically. Further, the treaty represented the desire of B.C. itself as owner of the river, they said.

Gen. McNaughton's criticism centered on the proposed $350,000,000 dam at Libby, Mont., backing Kootenay River water 40 miles into Canada and giving the U.S. control of the river before it re-enters B.C.

Gen. McNaughton also criticized the proposed High Arrow dam costing $129,500,000 north of Trail on the Columbia as desecration of the Arrow Lakes—a widening of the Columbia River for transient and short-term benefits.

HUGE BLOCK

He also contended that the treaty and the protocol together give the U.S. a huge block of cheap power while B.C. industry will have higher-cost power from the Peace River in the north.

SLUGGED AGAIN

"I was kept there for 26 or 27 hours. Every time I made a break they slugged me again," he said.

"Today I wear a beard to cover the scars from that beating," Metcalfe said he was a freelance writer at the time of the beating.

Metcalfe, a former reporter, today operates a public relations firm in Vancouver and is public relations director for the Vancouver International Festival.

Your Good Health

Recent Discovery Prevents Painful Gout Recurrence

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: A member of my family has developed gout. We have just learned of it and we are very worried. We know it's a serious disease. What we would like to know is how fast its progress is, and what can be done, including diet which we understand is very important?—A.B.

The body sometimes accumulates more uric acid than it should. In turn, chalky deposits of sodium urate form. A joint (the joint of the big toe is the commonest place, but others can be affected, too) suddenly becomes excruciatingly tender. This is sheer misery while it lasts. After a while (sometimes a few days, sometimes longer) the pain disappears. But then it comes on again, without warning, and the agony is repeated.

For several hundred years colchicine has been known as a drug which relieves the pain. Only in the last handful of years has benemid been found very useful in preventing attacks instead of relieving them afterward. So at long last we now have a lot of people going about their business free of these periodic bouts with gout.

The idea used to be that rich food and drink caused the disease. That now is doubted. It is a disturbance in uric acid metabolism, the cause of which is not known. It affects 20 men for every woman.

WATCH DIET

Most doctors recommend that patients be at least moderately careful of their diet. Don't go overboard on rich foods. Avoid foods high in purines: the "organ meats," such as liver, heart, sweetbreads, kidney, tongue; and, generally speaking, the red meats, such as beef and sausage, plus pork, venison, turkey, duck, goose, bacon; also avoid gravies, and meat soups and extracts, as well as lentils, beans, peas, sardines, rabbit and squab.

Chicken, lamb, ham, herring, salmon, tuna, whitefish, lobster, crab, are some which are of only moderate purine content.

FAIR CHOICE

Eggs, cheese, milk, nuts are low in purine, so you have a fair amount of choice in obtaining protein. Cereals, vegetables and fruits are either low or moderate in purine.

My advice for the gout patient is to let his physician set up a suitable continuing routine of medication to ward off attacks, and bolster this with reasonable diet.

Dear Dr. Molner: X-ray showed a small stone in my right kidney. Would sleeping on right side cause stones to accumulate there? Being an invalid, I cannot lie on my left side very long, and must sleep on my right side. Is there any truth to the rumor that cranberry juice will keep stones from forming?—R.F.

I doubt that sleeping on the right side would have anything to do with it at all. However, a high degree of inactivity can cause a change in the calcium balance of the body which may encourage stone formation.

The only virtue I can see in cranberry juice is that it has an acid ash, hence helps keep the urine on the acid side. Whether this is helpful would depend on the chemistry of the stones, for there are various kinds.

Nassau Man on Rampage Kills Wife, Six Others

NASSAU (AP)—A man with a shotgun rampaged through Nassau's southern suburbs Wednesday night killing seven—including himself—and wounding six in a two-hour automobile foray.

Dozens of police, who had cordoned off a two-square-mile area and searched it in vain for the slayer, found Robert Rolle, 30, dead of shotgun wounds in his home with the big-bore weapon lying nearby. Police commissioner Nigel Morris said authorities did not establish a motive immediately but "the first person he shot was his wife."

Police said Rolle went berserk, took a friend's automobile and sped through south Nassau, leaving a wake of bodies and terrified onlookers beseeching police help.

All those slain except Mrs. Rolle were men.

The bloody shooting spree indirectly brought about one additional death. Alfred Glin-ton, a resident who went to the aid of wounded victims, dropped dead apparently from a heart attack induced by excitement.

Flag Still Furlled

He denied a newspaper reported that he had called the Queen to say the Red Ensign would no longer be flown in Canada.

At the Thursday morning cabinet meeting, there were three flag designs under study. All had three red maple leaves on a single stem as the principal feature. The difference was in the backgrounds—one all white, another all pale blue, and the third white with blue vertical bars at each side to symbolize Canada's sea-to-sea national motto.

A spokesman for Mr. Pearson said that the design having been decided on by the cabinet, nothing more could be said about it until it was put before Parliament.

However, it was reasonable to assume that the maple leaf motif was approved since it was common to the three designs, he added.

The cabinet meeting was marked by a vigil maintained outside the room by Miss Edythe Dowd of Montreal, who said she came to Ottawa for the specific purpose of waving the Red Ensign at Mr. Pearson. He spoke to her briefly and on trying to convince it that summer holidays should be granted.

The NDP member for Timiskaming said the prime minister was "unfair" and "rather stupid" if he thought Parliament would clean up all the government's legislation before taking a breather.

He said some MPs were already taking their summer holidays and would be around in the hot months to make sure the prime minister was kept in the House through June and July.

GUN AT HEADS

It was "unfair and unrealistic" to point a gun at the heads of MPs to get all legislation passed so that Parliament could be recessed. Members of Parliament should be allowed time to visit their constituencies in the summer months—not in the dead of winter.

Mr. Fettes suggested a recess from June 1 to the end of July.

Robert Prittle (NDP—Burnaby-Richmond) said there was fault on both sides of the House for the fact that business was not moving well.

There were some Conservatives who were anxious to see their leader get another chance to become prime minister, and there likely were Liberals who wanted their leader to try for a majority position in the Commons.

Rejected

VANCOUVER (CP)—Labor Minister Peterson has rejected a union request to impose binding arbitration in the deadlocked dispute over 1963 fish prices.

The United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union had asked Mr. Peterson to invoke Section 25 of the Fisheries Act of B.C. in their dispute with the Fisheries Association of B.C.

Section 25 provides for the provincial cabinet to order binding arbitration if it is requested by either the fishermen or the employers.

NEED OUTLINED

Mr. Shelton expressed the thanks of the board for the donation and explained the need for the new X-ray machine, which will cost $15,000. One-third of the total is payable by the provincial government leaving $10,000 to be raised locally. The fund drive began in February. Hospital officials here are hoping that the total will be reached by the end of June.

Present from the Nanaimo Gyro Club were president Archie Morris, past president Jack Ryan, Chair Wilson and E. J. Vawden.

Nanaimo Woman:

Motorcyclists 'Quite a Hazard'

NANAIMO — A Nanaimo woman who pleaded guilty to failure to yield the right-of-way at an intersection told Magistrate Eric Finch that motorcycle riders are "going to create quite a hazard in the summer months."

Mrs. Irene Kilner, 720 Beach, was charged after the car she was driving struck motorcycles ridden by Dennis Donnelly, 19, and Barry Finch, 17, both of Nanaimo, at St. George Street and Millstone Avenue, May 7. Donnelly was hospitalized with head injuries and a broken collar bone. Finch suffered a scraped knee.

CONSIDERABLY LESS

Donald Kilner who appeared for his wife, told the magistrate that Mrs. Kilner felt the injuries suffered by the pair would have been considerably less if they had been wearing safety helmets, riding single file rather than abreast and had more experience riding motorcycles.

Magistrate Finch fined Mrs. Kilner $22.50 and agreed with her that it would be "good sense" for motorcycle operators to wear safety helmets. "I'm surprised they don't," he commented. "It would be rather dashing for the girls."

Hitler's Letters Shown In Nanaimo Display

By LYNNE WALLER

NANAIMO—An inveterate collector of things unusual, Jim White, secretary-treasurer of Qualicum School District, displayed his large collection of war medals and souvenirs at Mount Benson Legion Hall during the Victoria Day weekend.

Mr. White showed visitors everything from a signed letter from the Duke of Wellington to autographed photographs of American astronauts. He has been collecting these things over the past 15 years by corresponding with persons all over the world.

Among his prized possessions are Gurkha knives and helmets, authenticated correspondence from Adolf Hitler, genuine safe conduct passes dropped by both Allies and Germans during the Second World War.

The display was sponsored by Mount Benson Legion at the special request of Mayor Pete Maffeo. The last time they appeared in Nanaimo was at an open house at the Legion Nov. 11.

Mr. White also has plans for displaying his large collection of foreign licence plates and war stamps.

U.S. Capital 'Must' Here Can't Do Without It, Says Williston

NANAIMO—Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston told Scored party members in Nanaimo Wednesday Canada needs American investment in order to be able to fully develop the resources of the country.

"Canadians won't invest," he said. "We don't generate our own risk capital. We're either going to have that capital or we're going to waste our resources.

"My own view is that we couldn't get along without the Americans. In the forest products industry, 70 per cent of everything marketed is sold in the U.S."

The minister said foreign investment coming into Canada becomes Canadian as soon as it crosses the border because who ever is developing Canadian resources must obey Canadian laws and pay Canadian taxes.

He cited the proposed pulp mill near Kamloops as an example of the lack of Canadian risk capital. It was not until an American company invested in the project that it got off the ground, he said.

"This is a big country, we've got to generate capital before we start investing it ourselves."

WKKED BUSINESS, BUT—

Turning to the "sustained yield" policy in the province's forest industry, Mr. Williston commented, "It's a wicked little business, but what most people don't realize is that it has been devised to create employment.

"We don't subsidize the big companies, but in a bad year we do reduce the Crown's take because it's a lot easier to keep the workers going than pay welfare."

TOUGHEST POLICY

The policy of sustained yield provides that logging companies are obliged to cut a certain acreage of timber in a year. In British Columbia, 85 per cent of timber lands are owned by the Crown. "We've got the toughest resource policy on the North American continent," said the minister.

Mr. Williston told party members about progress being made on the Portage Mountain dam in the Peace River power project.

SIX WEEKS AHEAD

He said the contractors are six weeks ahead of schedule and $25,000,000 under the originally estimated cost of $99,000,000.

"The dam will be just as permanent in there as a mountain." When finished it is expected to be 7,000 feet long, 600 feet high, and one-half mile wide at the bottom. It will back up waters of the Peace

IWA 'Hot' Steam Ban Slows Down Sawmill

Forest Dispute

Conciliator Suggests Pay Boost

VANCOUVER (CP)—A government conciliator has recommended a 28-cent-an-hour wage increase in a two-year contract as a basis for settlement in a dispute involving 25,000 coastal woodworkers.

The report of E. P. Fisher in to the dispute between the International Woodworkers of America and the Forest Industrial Relations, representing the employers, was released by Labor Minister Peterson here Thursday.

TWO PHASES

It calls for: A 15-cent increase effective June 15; a further 13 cents effective June 15 next year, and 15 cents additional for journeymen tradesmen.

Thus under the recommendation, journeymen would receive 43 cents over two years. The IWA had demanded a 40-cent overall general increase, plus 30 cents for tradesmen over the current basic wage of $2.08 an hour.

NO OFFER

The employers had never announced any wage offer. Mr. Peterson called the report a "fair basis for settlement."

"I am hopeful that this recommendation will bring about a settlement of this most important contract."

Mr. Fisher was brought in—the first time a conciliator officer had been used in a woodworkers' dispute—at the end of April when negotiations

PORT ALBERNI—IWA members' refusal to operate machines using "hot" steam has idled about 50 per cent of the workers at the huge Somass division shingle and sawmill here.

Meanwhile, the Office Workers International Union, Local 15, on strike at MacMillan, Blodet and Powell River's Alberni pulp and paper division here, has placed an information picket at the gate of the Somass division.

ON STRIKE

A spokesman for the company said the IWA had refused to operate machinery using steam generated at the pulp and paper division where office workers are on strike.

The electrically operated planer mill is continuing operations along with carding and other areas of the plant. However, the heading and shingle-splitting machinery are affected, with the result that main operations of the mill are down.

HALF IDLED

Approximately 50 men are employed at the Somass division. The company spokesman said that while it is impossible to say exactly how many men are out of work as the result of the shutting down of machines using steam, it is estimated that half the men will be idled.

International vice-president Bill Lowe of the office workers union had expressed regret that settlement had not been reached when union and company officials met Wednesday in Vancouver under chairmanship of deputy labor minister William Sands.

TOO MUCH

He said he had nothing further to say in regards the differences between the employers and employees. "I feel there has been too much criticism from both sides, without enough constructive effort to reach an agreement," he said. "We are ready to resume talks at any time," Mr. Lowe added.

Aid to Albernis

Ottawa, B.C. Flayed

OTTAWA (CP)—The government's $250,000 assistance to flood victims in Alberni, B.C., was described as meagre in the Commons Thursday by Tom Barnett (NDP—Camos—Alberni).

News of the $250,000 federal grant "hit the area like a bombshell," said Mr. Barnett, who represents the stricken area.

He said the people involved thought the federal government would "help with both feet on a full-scale basis" after army engineers had been sent in immediately after the tidal wave struck.

The flood was followed by a long period in which those involved did not know what was going to happen, he said. "The growing frustration went on for weeks." No statement was forthcoming from the provincial government and the people began pinning their hopes on expected action by the federal government.

He said he felt "a great sense of frustration and rage" when the $250,000 donation was announced.

He said Premier Bennett of British Columbia can outdo Quebec Resources Minister Rene Levesque in taking positions that would balkanize the country, and then he goes to the federal government saying, "give me, give me, give me."

"But this was not the time for the federal government to take issue with him on the kind of request he made."

Nanaimo District

Vocational School Plan May Add Five Courses

NANAIMO—Provincial cabinet approval of a $240,000 scheme to expand vocational training facilities in the district will result in the eventual addition of five courses to the vocational program here.

James McPherrin, secretary-treasurer of the local school board, said the plan must go to Ottawa and back to Victoria before work can begin here. Two rooms will be added to Nanaimo District Senior Secondary School which already has three vocational classes in carpentry, machine shop and commercial.

POWER MECHANICS

Mr. McPherrin said they will try to include power mechanics in the curriculum beginning in September 1964, and by September 1965, will be able to offer vocational courses in electricity, electronics, drafting, graphic arts and agriculture.

The agriculture course will necessitate the construction of a greenhouse on school grounds.

Duncan Police Court

Very Close to Contempt Victoria Driver Told

DUNCAN—Magistrate D. K. McAdam warned a Victoria motorist in police court here Thursday, "You came very close to contempt of court."

He fined Kenneth B. Moyse of Victoria $150 for failing to produce his driver's licence, after being ordered to do so by the court.

A few weeks ago, Moyse had been fined $75 here for speeding but was unable to produce his licence at that time.

Moyse told the court Thursday he was unable to produce the licence because it had been lost by the Saanich police department and he had been "too ill" to produce it at Duncan.

Also in court, Nelson Joseph Canute and T. A. L. Canute, both of Koksilah, pleaded guilty to a charge of attempted car theft and were remanded for probation report and sentence.

Ralph F. Kraft, of Duncan, was fined $100 after he was convicted of driving without reasonable consideration for other highway users.

A one-year licence suspension was also recommended. Court was told that motorists complained that Kraft had passed a number of cars, forcing oncoming traffic off the highway.

Mares Killed, Hurt

Horse-Car Suit Undecided

NANAIMO—Judge Arnold Hanna reserved decision Thursday in a civil case resulting from a motor vehicle accident Oct. 22, 1963, when one thoroughbred mare was killed and another seriously injured near Alberni.

Mary Earl of Beaver Creek Road, Alberni, owner of the property where the horses were kept, is being sued by David L.

Graham of 11 S. 14th Avenue, Port Alberni, for the damages done to his car by the presence of the horses on the highway.

Mr. Graham is also suing Neil Walton, 407 Bute Street, owner of the horses, Mystery Play and Ky Debt.

In turn, Mr. Walton is suing Mr. Graham for the value of the two mares, both five months in foal. Mystery Play, a 10-year-old racehorse turned brood mare, died as a result of the injuries she suffered in the accident. Mr. Walton claims Ky Debt is too badly crippled as a result of the accident to breed again and although her foal was born alive it died because she was unable to nurse it.

Mr. Walton admitted neither horse was a "Northern Dancer."

Two Seek Chieftainship

DUNCAN—Incumbent Cowichan Indian Chief Mike Underwood and band member Ross Modeste have been nominated for the chieftainship to be decided at the election next Wednesday.

Joe, Simon Charles, Ignatius Thorne, Benedict Alphonse, Alphonse Billy, Wallace Antoine, Robbie Daniels, Güner Jimmie, Rennie Wilson and William Joe.

Tourist Bureau Nightmare

While We Shivered...

If you thought Victoria was cold yesterday, you're dead right. It was the second coldest place in Canada. (See Page 2.)

Only St. John's, Newfoundland, had a lower daytime temperature—45 degrees compared to Victoria's 48.

Even Whitehorse, in the Yukon, was warmer with a 51-degree temperature.

...Prairies Sweltered

WINNIPEG (CP)—Residents of the tiny southern Manitoba community of Gretna sweltered in a 90-degree temperature as many points in the province Thursday broke existing high record temperatures.

The weather office in Winnipeg reported Thursday night the temperature in the community, situated on the Canadian-

United States border about 50 miles south of here, broke the previous May 21 record of 86 set in 1954, 1958 and 1961.

In Winnipeg a 34-year-record fell as 96.6 was reached, breaking the previous high of 91 set in 1930.

The 96.6 reading was the highest in Winnipeg since Aug. 16, 1961, when 97.3 was recorded, the weather office said.

Columbia

River Treaty Certain

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons committee study of the Columbia River treaty was virtually completed Thursday and there was strong evidence after 50 meetings since April 7 that it will pass as expected without one vote having been swayed.

External Affairs Minister Martin reiterated his support for the 1961 treaty with the United States and the protocol signed in January.

SECRET SESSION

Now, the external affairs committee stands adjourned until its steering group puts together a report for discussion at a secret session of the 35-member committee.

Only the New Democrats buck the treaty. One possible dissident, Lawrence E. Kindt (PC-Macled) said Thursday he was not too happy about some features of the deal with British Columbia and the U.S.

Let the People Decide!

Dear Prime Minister: I Want Flag Plebiscite

Though the Daily Colonist takes the editorial stand that the Canadian Red Ensign should be retained as Canada's flag, it recognizes the right of every Canadian of voting age to express his personal and free views on the matter.

The Colonist firmly believes that the choice of a national symbol is something that cannot and must not be left in the hands of politicians to decide under partisan duress.

The only way to remove this issue from the realm of politics is for a national plebiscite to be held, in which every Canadian citizen can make his

Parolee Near Death

QUINCY, Mass. (AP) — A long-term criminal, paroled six weeks ago after being termed a classic example of rehabilitation, lay near death Thursday night, hit by a car as he crossed a street with the Canadian-born woman who had waited to marry him.

Joseph A. Flaherty, 41, was paroled from Walpole state prison April 3 after serving 13 years of a 36- to 46-year sentence for rape, robbery and assault.

A few years ago he was considered one of the toughest convicts in the Massachusetts prison system.

When he was paroled, Warden John A. Gavin said "in all my 29 years in the correction field I have never met a man who so thoroughly followed out his promises to straighten out."

Flaherty married Frances McKeeney, 33, a native of Peace River, Alta., soon after being paroled. They had become acquainted by mail after she sent him a Christmas card in 1955 from Peace River.

Quick reaction followed when Vancouver hotelman Frank Baker (in coveralls above) raised "new flag" on his hotel. Made of (high quality) tablecloth, flag drew mostly favorable comment, but those opposed "threatened everything from boycott to burnings," said Baker, who never heard such "vitriolic abuse." —(CP Photofax)

'Pearson Flag' Picked, But ...

Still Tightly Furled

OTTAWA (CP)—The cabinet approved a maple leaf flag for Canada Thursday but the House of Commons was left no wiser about its detailed design.

Prime Minister Pearson told reporters after a three-hour morning cabinet meeting the cabinet had unanimously agreed on a design, which will be embodied in a resolution to be submitted to the Commons next week.

Mr. Pearson also said that if he were asked in the Commons Thursday to describe the design, he would do so in general terms.

But no one asked him point-blank during the House question period for the details.

Instead, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker quizzed the prime minister about the circumstances surrounding a dinner party Mr. Pearson gave last week for some journalists, at which the Liberal leader's personal preference for the flag was displayed and discussed.

HIS FLAG

Mr. Diefenbaker called it Mr. Pearson's personal flag, and Mr. Pearson said that was not so. The cabinet had decided on a design, he added, which would be submitted to the Commons soon.

Mr. Pearson said his preview for some reporters was just a social occasion, and he hoped the reporters had as good a time at his house as they did whenever they visited Mr. Diefenbaker.

TEA-AND-FLAGS

"We had a cup of tea," Mr. Pearson said, "and some discussion about flags and emblems did come up."

U.S. Planes Watch Laos

From AP, UPI

Coupled with a stern warning in the UN Thursday that the United States will defend the countries of Southeast Asia from Communist aggression so long as they request help came a Washington announcement that U.S. jet planes are keeping a high-flying watch on Pathet Lao forces in Laos.

Deeply concerned by the trouble boiling up in Southeast Asia, the U.S. state department Thursday joined its major allies in calling for a meeting of the 14 signatories to the Geneva Agreement under which Laos is neutralized.

And, in Paris, French foreign minister Couve de Murville called on the major powers yesterday to guarantee neutralization not only for Laos but for all of former French Indochina.

Reporting to a cabinet meeting on a French note to Britain and Russia, co-chairman of the Geneva Agreement, Couve de Murville said:

NO OTHER SOLUTION

"There is no other solution to the Laos problem than neutralization by the big powers. It is the sole guarantee of peace."

Although the Western Big Three seemed in loose agreement on the necessity for a conference on the Communist-caused Laos crisis, the Soviet Union has announced support for continued coalition rule of the Asian kingdom.

Moscow coupled this with a warning against the exclusion of any Laotian political element, a reference to the pro-Red Pathet Lao faction that has been boycotting the coalition.

Not Ruble To UN - Kremlin

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The Soviet Union announced again Thursday night that it won't pay a ruble of its $32,000,000 arrears on United Nations Congo and Middle East peace-keeping accounts.

The Soviet UN delegation issued a statement saying the expenses for the two operations are illegal "and the Soviet Union has no intention to share them."

The other nine countries in the Soviet bloc owe total arrears on the peace-keeping operations of $10,700,000. Cuba, which follows the Soviet lead, owes $444,000.

'They Found I Was A Writer'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ben Metcalfe, newspaper man turned publicist, said Thursday he was badly beaten when guests at an "LSD party" discovered he was a writer.

He was commenting on testimony given by accordionist Leo Aquino at the San Francisco trial of Bernard Roseman and Bernard Copely, charged with smuggling and sale of LSD, a hallucination-producing drug.

Filibuster Threatened

'We Want a Holiday'

OTTAWA (CP)—The government received a veiled ultimatum from a New Democratic Party MP Thursday — either plan now for summer holidays for MPs or face a hot-weather filibuster on government legislation.

ade of divorce bills, said Prime Minister Pearson should set the dates for a six-week or eight-week summer break in Parliament's business, then list the essential legislation that should be passed right away.

With an agenda and a definite holiday break before them, MPs would get cracking on the important legislation, he said. The debate arose during con-
